GERMANS SWEEP TOWARD WARSAW; CAPTURE LOWICZ

A British squadron of warships bombarding the German land forces along the Belgian coast has been driven off by German artillery fire, according to a Berlin official report issued today. Berlin also announces that the Germans are making gains in the Argonne region of France, capturing trenches there.

Along the great eastern battle front the Germans and Russians are striking hard and desperately for advantage. While Berlin announces that the German invaders of Russian Poland have pushed to within thirty-one miles of Warsaw, capturing Lowicz and other important towns, Petrograd reports the capture of Gumbinnen by the Russians, who are maintaining their strong offensive in East Prussia.

The capture of Gumbinnen is important because it opens the way for the advance on Insterburg, which is the chief railroad centre of East Prussia. From Insterburg three roads run north, three south, one east and one west. The western line runs direct to Koenigsburg, and that fortress is probably the objective of the Russian troops in this region. Gumbinnen, which was formerly a flourishing little town of 15,000 people, was partially destroyed by the Russian bombardment and many civilians are said to have been killed.

The Berlin announcement of successes in Poland is based on semi-official reports from the front. Besides Lowicz, Debsko and Rozlazlow have been captured. All three towns are on the Bzura River. Rozlazlow is only thirty-one miles west of Warsaw.

News of the capture of Lowicz, which is on the south bank of the Bzura, indicates that the Germans have crossed that stream in force. Lowicz is an important railroad point, two lines from there, running to Warsaw, one through Skierniewiele and the other through Socharzew, just across the Bzura from Rozlazlow.

Debsko and Rozlazlow are on the second line mentioned and are located on the north bank of the Bzura. Their capture gives the Germans control of the railroad between Rozlazlow and Socharzew.

FIGHTING NEAR SUEZ CANAL.

According to an official announcement from Constantinople, Turkish troops have reached the Suez Canal, and fighting is going on between the Ottoman and British forces between Katasa and Teatebe, thirty kilometers (18.6 miles) east of the canal near Kantara. The statement says:

"Two English officers and many soldiers have been wounded. We captured an English outpost camel riders. The Egyptian police surrendered."

Kantara is the canal terminus of the caravan route running westward from El Arish along the Mediterranean coast. El Arish was recently taken by the Turks. Kantara is about twenty-six miles south of Port Said.

A large force of Turkish troops transferred from Adrianople to Trebizond, Asia Minor, has sacked all the shops of the Christians in the latter town and killed three Christians, according to Athens advices.

SHELLS DAMAGE YPRES CATHEDRAL.

Shells hurled upon Ypres by the German artillery have set fire to the famous Cathedral of St. Martin, the noted Halles, or Cloth Hall and numerous houses, according to an official statement issued at Paris this afternoon. It states that the Germans are directing their attacks against Ypres, against Soissons and

STATE COMMISSIONER DOESN'T GET GOAT AT BIG SUFFRAGE FAIR

Mrs. Owen Grant.

Commissioner Walker of the State Department of Animal Industry didn't "get the goat" of the suffragists.

Up at the big suffrage fair at the Copley-Plaza the suffrage goat remained intact, even the goat's goatee remaining untouched, despite the rumor that went the rounds to the effect that the commissioner might put the quarantine ban on the "Billie."

The commissioner didn't do any such thing. Instead, he granted the suffragists a permit to use their goat as an extra added attraction at the fair. The word brough joy into the hearts of all the suffrage workers.

"Delighted," exclaimed Mrs. Owen Grant, one of the most prominent of the younger workers for votes for women. "Anyway, nobody could get the goat of suffrage."

The fair opened today and will continue through tomorrow. One of the big features will be the auctioning off of the goat which is of the trained variety. "Billie" was raised by Mrs. R. Gordon Fuller of Dover.

At first somebody suggested that "Billie" might come under the quarantine on livestock because of the war on the foot and mouth disease. The goat is a prize winner, being the holder of blue ribbons won at a number of big fairs.

BROOKLINE OFFERS $500; ASKS STATE FOR MORE

A reward of at least $1,000 will be offered for the arrest of the slayer of Charles J. Merrill and the partner of the slayer it today appeared. The Brookline Selectmen, meeting tonight, plan to offer a $500 reward, to ask Governor Walsh to have the State swell this by $500, and to urge private citizens to additionally increase the amount.

Under the statutes, Brookline cannot offer more than $500. But Philip S. Parker, chairman of the Selectmen, and Walter J. Cusick, one of the members of the board, today declared they would vote for that amount. Mr. Parker added that he would urge Governor Walsh to increase the sum.

Merrill, manager of the Hitchcock drug store at No. 903 Boylston street, was shot down by one of two yeggs who entered the store and held up Merrill and two clerks in an attempt at robbery. Merrill shoot what the safe and take of the yeggs shot him dead.

The Boston and Brookline police have issued a State-wide request for the bandits, and three suspects were arrested in Dublin, Ireland, one of the three cleared themselves and the third, while connected in some fashion with the Brookline crime, was identified by Detective Kelly as the man who took up the Fort Hill Wine company's automobile, built the same night and got the Selectmen Parker of Brookline, in announcing plans for the reward said

"We are of the opinion that the reward ought to be at least $1,000. Accordingly, I shall draw appealing to the State for an additional reward and if he will not respond that we will vote to ask the Governor and Council to increase the $500, which we shall offer, to an even $1,000.

"It is only proper that the State should take a hand in the matter as

Mrs. Curley Calls 'Buy Basket' Idea Big Xmas Help

Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of Boston's Mayor, today sent a Christmas message to the wives and mothers of Greater Boston, urging them to give practical support to the AMERICAN'S "Give a Basket" plan to provide Christmas dinners for the city's deserving poor.

Mrs. Curley's message was given in response to a rather interesting little experiment which was tried in order to see how familiar the comely features of the Mayor's wife are to the Boston Postal service.

It wasn't much of a test for the post office after all. The AMERICAN wrote a letter to Mrs. Curley, asking her for a "Give a Basket" message to the wives and mothers, supplementing the vigorous endorsement the Mayor himself had given the plan.

The letter was enclosed in an envelope "photographed" literally to Mrs. Curley. For, instead of a pen and ink address, the envelope bore a new photograph of Mrs. Curley, the last she had taken. This likeness was pasted right on the envelope.

This "photographed" letter was mailed at the Boston central post office at 11:20 a. m. and was delivered at 12:15, just fifty-five minutes later, at the Mayor's residence, No. 105 Mt. Pleasant avenue, Dorchester.

Mrs. Curley was naturally startled to see her own features smiling at her from the noon mail. When she had read the letter she wrote an immediate reply to the AMERICAN as follows:

"WILL MAKE WORLD BETTER."

The sweet spirit fostered by the AMERICAN, of service and sunshine at Christmastide, is indeed worthy of encouragement.

Fostering the teachings of Christ is but to illustrate in a most practical manner Christian progress.

If all who have profited by God's generosity would give a little, none would be needy, and Christmas would promote pleasant thoughts where sorrowful hearts are now found.

Sunshine would replace sadness, and the spirit of giving, once firmly established, would make this cold old world a better place for all.

MRS. JAMES M. CURLEY.

The AMERICAN takes pleasure in acknowledging a most gratifying donation by Oscar A. Shepard of the Shepard, Clark Company of No. 85 Commercial street. Mr. Shepard takes the "Give a Basket" season literally. He gives a thousand baskets. His letter, speaking for itself reads:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

The strong editorials which have appeared in your paper in regard to "Giving here instead of there" appeal to me writer.

Please draw upon me for 1,000 new baskets to be used for this worthy object.

Yours very truly,
SHEPARD, CLARK CO.
Oscar A. Shepard, Treas.

ENDORSED BY FOSS.

In sending a $25 contribution, ex-Governor Eugene N. Foss writes:

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

I heartily indorse your "Give a Basket" fund for the deserving poor among our own people and herewith [illegible] my contribution.

Many owe their present means of employment, from the war and other causes, and will undoubtedly be deprived of many of the joys of Christmastide unless those who are more fortunately situated come to their relief. Yours very truly,

E. N. FOSS.

The Rev. Duncan A. MacPhail, secretary of Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston, gives this strong endorsement:

Many deserving people can be helped by this plan of the AMERICAN. It is the family which has been temporarily embarrassed through the condition of the times that will feel the lack of Christmas cheer this year. The periodical beggar for a Christmas basket does not get the sympathy. By this plan the AMERICAN can help a number of deserving people who would never go to any charitable society. Let willing hands help these unfortunate families. They will get on their feet again, but do not let Christmas pass by without giving the children some happiness.

I know of a family with three children. They have been unable to get enough to eat for some time. They are respectable people. I can give you full particulars, and they would be most happy in receiving a Christmas basket.

There are others. Let us make

Hunt for Overcoat Leads Him to Court

John Kennedy's hunt for an overcoat at Harvard led him into East Cambridge court today on a charge of trespassing. Kennedy wandered into the room of James J. Sullivan, jr., in one of the dormitories and amused the students with stories of his past prowess as a pugilist. He finally found himself in a room occupied by Frank Chamberlain and kept him talking until Patrolman Tevlin arrived and locked Kennedy up. Judge Almy placed his case on file.

The Musicians' United Society of Central concert at Mechanics' Hall last night was the most successful the society has yet held, and the orchestra of two hundred string instruments, augmented by wood instruments, rendered an impressive program, ranging from Beale's "Farragut" to the Hungarian march from the "Damnation of Faust."

Autoist, Accused of Killing Maid, Held

Joseph P. Sullivan of Mountain avenue, Melrose, pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter before Judge Almy in East Cambridge Court today and was held in $1,000 for a hearing on December 1. Sullivan is accused of driving an automobile which struck and killed Christine Dettle, forty-two, a maid at Riverbank Court, in the Massachusetts avenue Cambridge

VERA CRUZ IS EVACUATED BY U. S. TROOPS

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 23.—Unconfirmed rumors are current here that Zapatista troops have attacked Mexico City and that fighting is going on in the streets.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 23.—The embarkation of Gen. American troops upon eight transports began early today, and it is expected that by the middle of the afternoon the evacuation of Vera Cruz will be complete.

General Candido Aguilar and several thousand Carranza troops are waiting a few miles west of Vera Cruz to occupy the city as soon as all the American soldiers have sailed.

Today the departure of the Americans was mourned by thousands of Mexicans as a calamity. They would have liked to see the United States soldiers kept here until peace is established throughout the republic.

The money received at the custom house by the United States, which amounts to more than a million dollars, is being brought to Galveston and will be held by the War Department.

The departure of the American troops does not mean that various Mexican factions will be allowed to punish the residents of Vera Cruz for submitting to American rule. United States warships are lying in the harbor and they will prevent, to be handy in case a conflict arises.

It is evidently the intention of Carranza to make Vera Cruz the capital, and this may result in the town being attacked by Villaists. In case this happens the guns of the American warships will tend to conserve the peace in the city that has been in the hands of the Americans for more than five and a half months.

Down today found the eight army transports and auxiliary transports with steam up waiting to take off the American troops. Those ships included the army vessels McClellan, Kilpatrick and Sumner and the steamers City of Macon, City of Denver, San Marcos, Kansan and Christobel.

Vera Cruz was awake all night. The soldiers completed their preparation for departure yesterday and the evening was given up to farewells.

General Funston established his headquarters on board the flagship Florida and the organization of his command began at daybreak. Everything progressed smoothly and in accordance with previous arrangements. As the Americans evacuated in support the Constitutionalist soldiers moved forward and occupied it.

MEXICAN STUDENTS CHEER VERA CRUZ EVACUATION NEWS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—Armed guards took up positions on the roof of the National Palace today and a large force of soldiers was stationed about the arsenal by General Blanco to prevent any attempt to seize that structure. When news that the American troops were evacuating Vera Cruz arrived here a procession was formed by students. It paraded before the government buildings and through the principal streets, the students keeping up a continuous chorus of "Viva Mexico."

Any soldier in the army of the Aztec Caliente Convention who shall molest a woman or steal any property during the occupation of Mexico City, will be shot under an order issued by General Villa.

Short fighting between the Carranzista garrisoning Guadalajara and the convention's forces is reported.

More Atrocities at Home Than in War, Says Minister

"I have seen more atrocities in East Boston, right in front of my own church, during a labor strike, than in all my war experiences in Europe," said Rev. A. R. Williams, pastor of the Maverick Congregational Church, East Boston, in his address today before the Congregational ministers of Greater Boston in Pilgrim Hall.

Pastor Williams gave a vivid account of his experiences when taken for a spy last September in Europe.

"I didn't see any atrocities," he continued. "They may have existed, but in all my varied experiences and in talking with others who knew the war zone nothing of any definite nature of this kind was furnished me.

"My heart goes out to Belgium. The loyalty of the people shows the spirit of their self-sacrifice and their cheer and bravery in the midst of the devastation which has come to that country.

He said when in confinement one towel was given for the use of thirty-five men.

Business Is on Up Grade, Reports Commerce Board

Business is on the up grade. This is assuredly true. Conditions in the United States are better today than they have been at any time since the outbreak of the European war. There is a healthy and growing confidence in the situation, and in its prospect for continuing improvement. War orders have assumed enormous proportions. Deposits in savings banks are steadily increasing. There is a general feeling that our August and September war scare was more hysteria than hard sense. The feeling is justified. Make it unanimous.—Boston Chamber of Commerce Bulletin.

Motorcyclist Fined $50 on 3 Charges

Joseph J. Berlo, a motorcyclist of Thornton street, Roxbury, was fined $50 in Roxbury Court for violating the automobile laws. He was arrested Saturday after a chase along Blue Hill avenue and River street, Mattapan, in which four policemen took part. Judge Churchill imposed a fine of $15 for refusing to stop for a policeman, $25 for excessive speeding, and $10 for no registration. He placed a charge of unlawful speeding on file.

Fined for Assault on His Cell Mate

Daniel Manning, arrested in South Boston Saturday night for drunkenness, objected to the overcrowding cells in the station house. He made it so uncomfortable for one cell mate that the police substituted for the man Adam Lipkovis, a monumental gentleman who looks like a wrestler, and supposed Manning would be awed into peace. Not so. Today Lipkovis was in court with two black eyes and a cut lip. Manning was fined $5 for drunkenness, and $15 for assault on Adam.

OFFICER NOW ARRESTED IN DARLING CASE

Special Officer Daniel C. Grant of Dedham, who on Saturday night arrested George Granville Darling, a prominent Dedham attorney, and his client, Joseph Glancy of East Dedham, was himself arrested today on a warrant charging him with attacking Attorney Darling.

All three were arraigned today in the Dedham court before Judge Grover—Darling being charged with disturbing the peace, Glancy with trespass and Grant with assault and battery—and their cases were continued till December 3.

Grant was waiting in the clerk's office prior to the opening of court when Patrolman James J. Shine placed him under arrest. He was somewhat surprised. James P. Magenis, Progressive candidate for Governor in the recent election, represented him in court.

With Grant's arrest the fight becomes a three-cornered affair and some startling developments are looked for. The trouble dates back to a week ago Saturday when Grant arrested Glancy, who is eighteen years old, charging him with assault, following a disturbance in a Dedham theatre.

Saturday night while Glancy and Attorney Darling were watching a show in the same theatre, Grant again placed Glancy under arrest, charging him with trespass. When Darling went to the police station to arrange for bail for his client, he also was arrested by Grant, charged with disturbing the peace.

SULLIVAN GIRL ALIVE IN GRAVE?

BOULTON, Me., Nov. 23.—Mildred Sullivan's body was still warm and, in the opinion of many here, may have held a spark of life when the persons concerned in her alleged murder, hurried it in an automobile to the woodland grave.

It is even hinted today that the school girl may have been buried before life had been snuffed out by the morphine which the prosecution claims hastened a death that was made certain by bungling surgery.

The latter theory is scouted by the State medical experts, but they do not dispute that there might have been a flicker of life when the seventeen-year-old victim was whisked through darkness to the scene of the Millinocket burial.

ALIVE WHEN MOVED.

Local physicians say death from a drug would depend, in its speed, on the amount of morphine administered and more particularly upon the time it was injected. It was suggested that the girl had succumbed to the powerful effects of the drug, but that death had not taken place when she was snatched from the cot and hurried away in her night dress.

The most reliable authorities here say it is possible that she may have been hardly dead when she journeyed to the woods began, but they all combat the rumor that there was any life left when her body was dumped into a shallow hole and covered with dirt and leaves.

In the lay mind, however, this suspicion has become almost a certainty. One of the surgeons who officiated at the autopsy, and who did not wish to have his name published, said today:

"I don't think there was any life in the girl by the time she reached the burial spot. But as to whether there was a spark left when they started to move her, I should say one person's guess would be as good as another."

DUG GRAVE BEFORE DEATH.

The frenzied haste that marked the concealment of the girl's body had given rise to ugly rumors. New details cropped out today concerning Mildred's burial. For instance, it is now known that while the girl was in the throes of death, plans to dispose of her body were being taken over in whispers in the next room, and the startling disclosure was made today that the State has evidence to show that her grave in the woodlot, a mile from the Parlee house, was dug fully three hours before she died.

The prosecution believes that Perley Pelletier, the seventeen-year-old brother of Alice Pelletier, sweetheart of Lt. Dudley, was sent out as early as eight or nine o'clock to select the spot for a suitable grave. It is claimed the boy walked down the railroad track, returned and reported that everything was ready and that the victim was still living.

Mildred Sullivan's death scene and midnight burial as described by Katie Michaud, will be one of the most stirring features of the coming trial. It was learned today that Katie Michaud in her confession, told how she urged Dr. Dudley, as she claims, to notify Mildred's mother or to send her home, and finding that the others wouldn't consent to that, how she pleaded to call in another doctor.

Revelations about the check which is reported to have trapped a prominent Houlton suspect have increased curiosity as to the identity of the man higher up. Another man equally wealthy and influential is said to be as deeply involved. Everybody is guessing and guessing wrong.

MAY RETURN 7 INDICTMENTS.

The names of the real suspects are known only to a few officials. It would not be surprising if the Grand Jury reported its findings in the Sullivan case tomorrow afternoon. The Grand Jurors are anxious to go home for Thanksgiving. Many predict that seven indictments may be returned in the schoolgirl tragedy.

Mrs. George Sullivan, mother of the dead girl, is indignant over the rumors about wealthy men being in the case. She denies the insinuations. Her husband said today:

"Ambrose Bridge had better be careful what he says about our family and Mildred. If he attempts to smirch my daughter I'll whip him. I'll give him something he will not forget until his dying day. It was bad enough to act as he did without aggravating the affair.

TEAM WORK MAKES BOSTON CHAMPIONS ON BASEBALL FIELD

It was grand team work—the splendid co-operation of man with man—that won the pennant for the Boston National League baseball team. In fact, it is this same unity and "get-together" spirit that wins the surprising success in life.

Unfortunately, some people lack the ambition to co-operate with others because their health is not the best. They are nervous and "suffer" from indigestion.

Tona Vita is a natural remedy prepared from vegetable juices and medicines, aimed directly at relieving stomach distress, nervousness, headaches and other nerve troubles.

Tona Vita builds up the digestive organs. Not for a day or a week, but permanently. It proceeds along easy, natural lines and should restore the health and vitality in the most distressing cases.

Tona Vita has made thousands of friends, but it is not necessary to take their word for it—simply get a bottle and try it for yourself.

Tona Vita can be obtained at all the leading drug stores in Boston.

MISS MARIE LOUISE DUVAL, who will become the bride of George H. Pierce on Thanksgiving Day.

School Teachers to Be Married on Thanksgiving Day

A romance of school days will lead to the wedding on Thanksgiving Day of Miss Marie Louise Duval, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Duval of Jamaica Plain, to George H. Pierce of Roxbury, in St. Thomas' Church, Jamaica Plain. Monsignor Moriarty will officiate. Miss Florence Crotty will be maid of honor and Joseph Lynch will be best man.

Both the bride-to-be and the groom-to-be are school teachers. They first met when they studied at the Boston Normal, from which they were graduated in 1911. Miss Duval was a teacher in one of the Roslindale grammar schools. She studied in France and was organist of St. Thomas' Church. She is prominent in both church and social affairs. The groom-to-be is a submaster in the Harvard Grammar School. He was graduated from Boston College in 1910.

Mrs. F. W. Andrews Dies at Vendome

Mrs. F. W. Andrews, eighty-five, well known in society circles of Newport, New York and Washington, is dead at the Hotel Vendome as the result of a fall in which she broke her hip.

Throngs at Funeral of Hildred Parker

Throngs of neighbors and friends attended the funeral of Hildred Parker, fifteen, the Everett girl whose body was found in Coleman's pit. The Rev. C. Lacount of the First Methodist Church, Everett, officiated.

"ELEO" SEARS HAS NEW FAD; TO SHOW DOGS

The four days' show of the Eastern Dog Club, opening today in Mechanics Building, will be marked by a woman judge, ninety-nine champion dogs, a total of 1,245 entries for fifty-three varieties and breeds, and a grand total of 834 dogs from some of the greatest kennels in the country.

One hundred and twenty women will exhibit their dogs. Mrs. A. V. Crawford of Evenston, Ill., who has more than 100 dogs, will bring thirty to Boston. Jean B. Crawford, her daughter, will show some of her own animals, and another exhibitor from Illinois will be Mrs. C. M. Legman of Chicago.

Miss Anne Tracy of Highland Falls, N. Y., is coming to judge the German sheepdogs. She is a niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and is one of the greatest authorities on the German sheepdogs in this country.

The social set of Boston and vicinity will be well represented among the exhibitors. Of unusual interest is the fact that Eleonora Sears is to make her first appearance in the dog show ring, having taken up fox terriers.

Mrs. J. de Forrest Danielson has entered two specimens of the strange, Papillons breed, and Mrs. Robert Jordan several fine Airedales. Mrs. George S. West, wife of the president of the club, is also to show some champion Airedales.

The two extremes of size in dogdom, the terrier and the St. Bernard, will be well represented in the Boston section. Mrs. F. A. Dallin showing some of the finest Boston terriers ever benched, and Mrs. T. E. L. Kelly her magnificent St. Bernards.

Mary Young will exhibit her French bull Flodern. Vandevare from her field kennels. Mrs. Arnold Lawson of Winchester some of her charming French bulls, and among others who have made entries from Greater Boston are Mrs. M. R. L. Freshel of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Franklin L. Gregory, Mrs. John C. Liggett, Mrs. G. Dentee, Miss Barbara Paul and Miss Marie L. Whittlesey of Brookline. Mrs. H. A. Clark, Mrs. Grace C. Driscoll, Mrs. C. H. Hollis, Miss T. L. Merriam, Miss Marian A. D. Porter, Miss Margaret Nicholson and Mrs. Horace P. Wood.

Pope Benedict Speaks to 50,000

ROME, Nov. 27.—For the first time since his election, Pope Benedict delivered an address in St. Peter's. Fifty thousand people heard His Holiness speak on "Faith."

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and after one or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail. —ADVERTISEMENT

FEAR FOR LAKE SUPERIOR SHIPS IN WIND STORM

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 23.—With Lake Superior lashed to a fury by a strong northwest wind, and snow blinding the sailors, the worst was feared today for the ships Nine and Nipigon, which are a week overdue.

Of the twelve bodies from the steamer Curtis and the barges Peterson and Martin, wrecked last week, six have been identified. The identity of the two women dressed in men's clothing is a mystery. Captain J. P. Jennings of the Curtis, who lived in Detroit, and Freighter Glen Campbell were among the dead. Charles Nelson, a sailor, and Campbell died from exposure after crawling four miles in the storm to Grand Marais.

Symphony Pension Concert Draws

A large and responsive audience attended the first of the two annual concerts for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pension Fund in Symphony Hall. The overtures and preludes of Wagner were rendered in chronological sequence, beginning with the overture to "Rienzi," and continuing with the overture to "The Flying Dutchman," and the prelude and bacchanale from "Tannhauser," using the Paris version.

AUNT OF 'SPY' THANKS MAYOR FOR RELEASE

Mrs. Angelica Post of No. 715 West Springfield street, South End, today received official notice from Mayor Curley that her nephew, Reinhold Anton Berrenberg, who has been held as a German spy by the London police, has been given his passports out of England.

This action on the part of the English authorities follows the appeal of Mayor Curley to the State Department at Washington in use their good offices to establish Berrenberg's American citizenship.

A copy of the Boston birth record of Berrenberg was forwarded to Ambassador Page in London. This, with other papers material to the case, convinced the London police of Berrenberg's innocence.

Mrs. Post said today:

"I am very thankful for my nephew's release. He will soon to join his parents in New York on the next boat. The Mayor deserves much praise for his prompt and efficient action in establishing Reinhold's innocence."

Berrberg, a graduate of the Boston University Law School, who lived at No. 12 Garland street before he went abroad, was arrested in London shortly after the execution of Carl Lody in the Tower, for espionage. Mayor Curley and the German-American Alliance have been active ever since endeavoring to prove that he is not a German. At one time it was said that he would be executed on November 20 unless he could prove his identity before that date.

CHARGE LODY WAS ILLEGALLY PUT TO DEATH

LONDON, Nov. 22.—In connection with the approaching trial by court martial of an alleged German spy known as "Horst von der Goltz," a very interesting legal point has been raised over the shooting of the German spy, Karl Hans Lody, which, it appears, was overlooked at the conclusion of the trial. It now appears that although the man was duly convicted by court martial, military law is not in force in this country at the present time and was not when Lody was executed.

According to the civil code in law — of course an obsolete one, since not extend to the death penalty for foreign spies tried in war time—and it is contended by high legal authority that the man Lody has been murdered. According to the strict law on the question the soldier who shot him are liable to be executed for murder. Now as six of these soldiers had their rifles charged with blank cartridges and the other six had their weapons loaded with ball cartridges, the responsibility charged by comrades not of the firing squad, the firers are unaware as to which of them fired the fatal shot.

It is believed that the only way to settle the difficulty is to pass a short bill indemnifying the men from blame. In the meantime the legal department of the government is hard pressed to avoid any such complication in connection with the trial of Horst von der Goltz, or "Bridgman Taylor," as the prisoner is also known. His case is somewhat similar to that of Lody's. He has a passport regularly made out to "Bridgman Taylor of El Paso," and he was arrested under conditions similar to those in the Lody case.

"DISMAL JIMMIES."

LONDON, Nov. 23.—London comic papers are poking fun at the "Dismal Jimmies, and the "A. I. L." brigade—the "All is Lost" brigade—who are predicting sad things for England.

FIGHTING FLOODS.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 23.—The engineers are attempting to drain the land behind the inundations along the Yser.

SUEZ CANAL MENACED BY TURKISH VICTORY

against Rheims. In the Argonne region three attacks made by the Germans have been repulsed, the statement adds.

That the allies' aviators are attempting to destroy the Zeppelin plant at Friedrichshafen and thus foil the German plan for the aerial invasion of England, is indicated by cable dispatches received today. A message from Cologne says:

"Aeroplanes were sighted Saturday making toward the Zeppelin works on Lake Constance, but they turned back before reaching Friedrichshafen. It is evident a large fleet of hostile aeroplanes has been assembled with the determination to make every effort to destroy the Zeppelin works. The Germans are taking all possible precautions."

A correspondent of the London Daily News, cabling from West Flanders, declares that the total losses of the present war thus far amount to the staggering total of five millions of men. "The astounding casualties which three and a half months of modern warfare has produced is a serious matter for the whole of Europe," he says.

"I have authority for stating that this war has already accounted for something like 5,000,000 of the pick of European manhood. This is no fancy figure. It has been carefully worked out."

BIG GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS.

The AMERICAN'S correspondent at Rotterdam cables that reinforcements of infantry, cavalry and artillery are passing through Belgium to strengthen the German army in West Flanders. The invaders, he says, have thrown up a strong line of trenches behind the front, all the way from the French border through Bruges to the coast.

"The bloody angle," that elbow of land bounded by the junction of the Oise and Aisne rivers, has again been the scene of furious fighting, in which the allies were on the offensive.

That region marks the point where the German lines lie nearest to Paris, and it is also the apex of the German wedge upon French soil.

Heavy artillery has been bombarding the German trenches north of Soissons and some of the German works have been destroyed. It is likely that the French and Algerian troops will make an effort to storm the German lines after the cannonade has been carried on to a sufficient length to unnerve the invaders.

Farther to the north, in the vicinity of Ypres, there has also been a recrudescence of activity, despite the near zero weather which is prevailing in West Flanders. The Germans seem to have made a shift of troops in that vicinity and have resumed their cannonade at great vigor.

According to a special dispatch from Paris, the Kaiser recently spent four days at Roulers. Although he wore the uniform of a second lieutenant of cavalry to disguise himself, his presence easily became known to the troops. The Kaiser visited the trenches and inspected the positions of artillery behind the lines. He addressed a communication to the German forces fighting upon the Ostend-Dixmude-Ypres line, urging them to the most supreme efforts.

Official War Reports.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Headquarters reports that fighting continues on the Nieuport-Ypres front. Small British squadrons which approached the coast were driven off by our artillery. The British naval guns had no effect.

We are gaining ground in the Argonne forest slowly but surely. We are gradually taking trenches and points of support, capturing prisoners daily. A reconnoitring expedition against our position east of the Meuselle was made in effective by a counter attack.

The situation in East Prussia is unchanged. The appearance of Russian reinforcements in Poland, from Warsaw, is postponing decision in the battle in the region of Czenstochau.

To the northeast of Cracow the Austro-German offensive is maintained.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 23.—The Germans had strongly intrenched themselves at Ginnbinnen after obstinately resisting our advance to that point. Their batteries inflicted heavy losses upon our troops as they advanced. On three successive days our soldiers made direct counter attacks, but only to be driven back.

The fourth day was devoted to a heavy bombardment from our artillery, heavy guns having been brought up.

On the fifth day, after our artillery had driven the Germans from their first line of trenches, the Cossacks made a daring charge and rode down the enemy's gunners. The German batteries on the east and south side of Gumbinnen were all silenced and then we occupied the town itself, the enemy retiring toward Insterburg. Our troops are in pursuit.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The day of yesterday was marked by violent cannonade. The enemy directed his blows particularly upon Ypres, where the Cathedral belfry, the Halles and numerous houses were set on fire, upon Soissons and upon Rheims.

In the Argonne the day was very warm. The enemy made three sharp attacks, which were repulsed.

In the Woevre region and in the Vosges, the situation is unchanged.

Austria Calls Its 'Last Man to War

ROME, Nov. 23.—Austria's last available forces have been called to the colors, according to a dispatch received today from Venice. It says that there are 50,000 reservists called back for lack of teachers.

"From October 1," asserts the dispatch, all schools in Trieste and the surrounding districts will be closed. As nearly all the teachers have been called up, they bring members of the last Landsturm. The levy has absolutely cleared the whole country of men."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why are the liver at the expenses of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logey" and "heavy." Note how they "perk up" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.—ADVERTISEMENT.

'Italy at Stake,' Says ex-Mayor Nathan

ROME, Nov. 23.—Sig. Nathan, ex-Mayor of Rome, delivered an important address in the Constanzi Theatre. "Italy's interests," he said, "colonial and national, alike are at stake. The former are endangered by the pan-Islamic war. The latter must be completed ,but when the settlement comes the neutrals will have no voice, whereas a new force by intervening can decide that war."

WELL-KNOWN BOSTON LETTER CARRIER PRAISES REMEDY VAR-NE-SIS

Was Unable to Walk Without Limping From Painful Form of Rheumatism.

Suffering from rheumatism, which was so painful that I had to have my shoe cut open, and even then walked with a decided limp—that's the condition I was in when I started to take Var-ne-sis, said Joseph Adams, a well-known letter carrier of Essex St. Post Office, Boston, Mass. He continued:

"I had been troubled with rheumatism in different parts of my body for some time. The pain in my shoulders was extreme, especially when the East winds came on. It finally settled in my heel and was so painful that I could not walk without limping, and at times was unable to take a step.

"Hearing so much about Var-ne-sis I decided to try it. After taking it a short time the soreness gradually left me and I was able to go about in comfort. Many friends in the office and on my route noticed I was no longer lame and were anxious to know what treatment I was taking. I am recommending Var-ne-sis to every one who mentions rheumatism to me."

Var-ne-sis is different from the ordinary remedies recommended for rheumatism because each week a letter is published from some one in Boston and vicinity that have recovered their health through this simple remedy. Var-ne-sis is different because it does not contain the ordinary drugs so often recommended for rheumatism and does not disturb the stomach.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatics. This is a very interesting paper and every rheumatic should have a copy. Send for yours.

A registered physician may be consulted free of charge at the Var-ne-sis Boston office, 140 Boylston St. The large collection of crutches, canes, etc., may also be seen at this office.

Get Var-ne-sis now, today, at Riker-Jarmes and other reliable druggists, and know what good health means.

INCIDENT OF TENNESSEE NOT YET CLOSED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Until an official explanation is forthcoming from the Turkish government the Tennessee incident will not be regarded as closed by the United States. This was revealed today in informal discussions by State Department officials.

President Wilson takes the position, it was stated, that the communication from Ambassador Morgenthau Saturday clears up the crisis, but he is awaiting more detailed information from Constantinople.

At the White House the incident is regarded as having focussed attention on a dangerous situation existing in Asia Minor and throughout the Turkish empire.

Officials are taking every precaution to prevent a repetition of the affair but are apprehensive that an emergency, such as a violent outburst of anti-foreign feeling in a Turkish city, may compel Captain Decker of the Tennessee or Captain Oman of the North Carolina to take immediate action and undergo the risk of other grave complications.

FLEE COSSACKS.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 23.—Forty thousand people are fleeing from East Prussia into the interior of Germany daily; they fear a Cossack raid.

SEEK TO OPEN ROUTE.

ATHENS, Nov. 23.—Austria's present strenuous Servian campaign is taken as a move to open up a route through Servia by which communication with Turkey could be established.

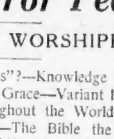
Giving Thanks for War or for Peace

MANY PERPLEXED WORSHIPPERS

How "In Everything Give Thanks"?—Knowledge Necessary Approaching Throne of Grace—Variant Praises and Thanks to God Throughout the World—The Solution of Our Perplexities—The Bible the Only Guide—The Spirit of a Sound Mind Rare—Majority of Thanksgiving Vain Formality Unnoticed or Resented.



Philadelphia, Pa., November 22, 1914.

The usual text for this season of Thanksgiving is found in the words, "In everything give thanks."—1 Thessalonians 5:18.

Reviewing briefly the condition of the world, the speaker declared that it must be a difficult matter for the majority of people to determine correctly the nature of the thanks they would offer unto God. Three hundred and fifty millions of humanity, our blood relatives, are at war, seeking to destroy each other. Nineteen centuries, during which Christendom and the Queen of heavenly Bride have absolutely cleared the whole country of men."

Philadelphia, Pa., November 22, 1914.

The usual text for this season of Thanksgiving is found in the words, "In everything give thanks."—1 Thessalonians 5:18.

Reviewing briefly the condition of the world, the speaker declared that it must be a difficult matter for the majority of people to determine correctly the nature of the thanks they would offer unto God. Three hundred and fifty millions of humanity, our blood relatives, are at war, seeking to destroy each other. Nineteen centuries, during which Christendom and the Queen of heavenly Bride have absolutely cleared the whole country of men."

Looking down into the future, the Pastor exhorted, "Let us give thanks to God for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever." It is God's mercy toward us that constitutes our ground for thanksgiving. It is true that praise must come from thankful hearts; and that to be properly thankful one must see and appreciate the favors visible to those who have not the one of faith and the relationship of things to come. But these very opportunities of the Lord's consecrated ones possess. As it is written, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear." But to the extent that any see and hear of the graces which God has bestowed upon us, to possess the knowledge of God and to disclaim it is to receive the grace of God in vain.

God's people have not only given thanks for future blessings, received and by faith, but additionally they appreciate blessings granted them in the present life, and give thanks for these. The first of these is the privilege of God's forgiveness in reckoning us by faith from sin and its penalty, so that without waiting for actual sinlessness we are now reckoned in the mercy which has justified us through the blood of Christ. All other blessings rest upon this one and all thanksgiving should properly include thanks for our justification by faith.

After our justification we were inducted into a still further grace or privilege—that of becoming members of the Body of Christ. Through acceptance of this privilege we gain the opportunity of a change of nature—from human nature to the divine (2 Peter 1:4). Our human nature justified, cleansed, made acceptable to God as a sacrifice through the merit of Christ, will be replaced by a spirit nature and glory, honor and immortality, joint-heirship with our Lord and Head, if we faithfully make our sacrifice (Romans 12:1). What cause we have for thanksgiving! What shall we render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward us?

The heart that has come into faith unions and communion with the Lord learns some thing more very day respecting the Heavenly Father's loving care for His children, and each fresh item of knowledge is a new well-spring of pleasure. "He satisfieth the longing soul." "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." These are the experiences of those true Christians called upon by the Apostle to thank God for everything and to know that this is the will of God in Christ Jesus to all who are members of the Body of Christ.

Thanks Through Tears.

Let us not overlook the fact that our last indication of thanks is due thanks for our sorrow, our trials, our disappointments, as well as for our joys and our pleasures; for the Lord overrules for us all things. Note how this the only Scripture to this effect. The Apostle elsewhere urges the members of Christ to rejoice in tribulation, because tribulation works out additional patience, and patience brings additional experience, which in turn brings larger hope until we are not ashamed of our tribulations, because through the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts.—Romans 5:3; 8:35.

The basis of all rejoicing as regards both the future and the present is faith in the fact that there is a God; that He has a noble character; that His Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power are perfect; and are thoroughly coordinated; that these attributes are all enlisted in the salvation of the world; that this salvation is now being worked out by the instrumentality of His Word and Spirit and at His First Advent; that it is still working out in this interval of His Church, and that shortly it will begin to take practical shape in the establishment of Christ's Millennial Kingdom, through which all blessing will extend to every creature of our race.

Let us rejoice to the extent of his enlightenment appreciate and confess the All-Wisdom of God in the Divine Plan for the ages. He is good, and His mercy endureth forever. Let those who have taken their stand for Him come to grow in grace, knowledge, faith and brotherly kindness, and let those of the world who are addressed in our text, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate," accept the terms of the calling of God in Christ Jesus—to be heirs of God and joint-heirs with our Lord.

Giving Thanks for War.

Very evidently the majority of mankind have an insufficiency of knowledge of God, of the Bible, and of the Divine Plan therein set forth, to thank God for the present state of war. But to the Church, whose eyes of understanding have been opened to see the lengths and the breadths, the heights and the depths, of God's love in the Message of the Bible, St. Paul writes: "In everything give thanks."

Ripe Christians have learned to give thanks to God for the adversities of His in their own experiences, convinced that under God's supervision, the direst of calamities may be overruled for good to Himself and for good to His name. But only the advanced, the developed, Christian is able to give thanks under circumstances of severe trials and fiery flags. Only those who have great faith, built upon clear knowledge of the Divine promises, can realize thoroughly that all things are working together for their good.

Similarly in respect to the great European war now in progress, its casualties, desolations and wounds, only the well-instructed of God's people can understand the Divine Plans and arrangements so thoroughly as to be able to give thanks in respect to the war and side to exercise confident faith that the outcome of it will mean blessings of instruction and preparation for future blessings.

If the Scriptures did not foretell this time of world-wide "distress of nations," we might not know that God had foreseen it and had made provision for its result before promising us the blessings of the Kingdom. But the same Bible that foretells about the war tells of its results, saying: "When the judgments of the Lord are abroad in the earth the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." (Isaiah 26:9). If, then, the war is teaching the world lessons along the lines of righteousness and truth, it is not doing permanent good. Moreover, the same Bible tells that the war is merely the outgrowth of human selfishness, ignorance, error and false doctrine, and assures us that although it will lead on to revolution, anarchy and the utter wreck of the present order of things—the present civilization—nevertheless, God is prepared for the emergency. "Man's extremity will be God's opportunity."

The Solution of Our Perplexities.

The hour having come for Messiah to take the reins of government, He will stand forth in Power and Majesty as the mighty monarch, and subject to the raging elements of the nations human and "Peace, Be still!" And there will be a great calm. The lesson learned in the trouble will be a lasting one, and the blessed opportunities of Messiah's Kingdom, which will be built upon the ashes of present institutions, will bring everlasting life and joy to all the willing and obedient.

Those who see the war from this viewpoint will indeed be in everything give thanks, rejoicing that the reign of Sin and Death will soon be ended; rejoicing that Satan will soon be bound for a thousand years; rejoicing that God's Kingdom will be established, and His will be done on earth, even as in Heaven; rejoicing that soon the knowledge of the true character of God will be universal, rejoicing that then, in the light of that knowledge, all the world will bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God, the Father, reposing still further, that all who under His Kingdom shall refuse or neglect to make a full surrender to the Lord shall be mercifully cut off from life in the Second Death.

During Messiah's Reign of Righteousness, all nations will be instructed, enlightened, blessed and helped, and will have to be applied on behalf of the billions who have gone down into the prison house of death—Sheol, Hades, the grave. The Church will constitute the First Resurrection. All starting in life will again be on the same plane. Later, during the Millennium, the world will return from the tomb, and the Great Judgment Day will ensue. The resurrection processes will continue with them, in order that the willing and obedient may rise gradually toward perfection and finally attain it. Meantime, the earth will be reclaimed and become the promised Paradise restored.

"Give Thanks, for He Is Good."

Looking down into the future, the Psalmist exhorts, "Let us give thanks to the Lord for He is good; for His mercy endureth forever." It is God's mercy toward us that constitutes our ground for thanksgiving. It is true that praise must come from thankful hearts; and that to be properly thankful one must see and appreciate the favors visible to those who have not the one of faith and the relationship of things to come. But these very opportunities of the Lord's consecrated ones possess. As it is written, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear." But to the extent that any see and hear of the graces which God has bestowed upon us, to possess the knowledge of God and to disclaim it is to receive the grace of God in vain.

God's people have not only given thanks for future blessings, received and by faith, but additionally they appreciate blessings granted them in the present life, and give thanks for these. The first of these is the privilege of God's forgiveness in reckoning us by faith from sin and its penalty, so that without waiting for actual sinlessness we are now reckoned in the mercy which has justified us through the blood of Christ. this Christmas more a giving Christmas than a receiving Christmas and help along the AMERICAN pan.

L. C. PAIGE AIDS PLAN.

L. C. Paige, the publisher, who offers 100 Christmas books for the children, writes as follows:

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

I have to thank you for calling my attention to the splendid campaign the AMERICAN is making for the "Give a Basket" Christmas plan.

I am glad to have the opportunity of co-operating in a slight degree in this really worth while idea, which represents the real Christmas spirit, and am enclosing check for $10 for five baskets.

If you will let me know just before the baskets are to be distributed, I will arrange to add 100 Page Christmas Books to these and ninety-five other baskets, so that some youngster in each family will have something else besides just the Christmas dinner.

With regards, very sincerely yours, LOUIS C. PAIGE.

The Christmas dinner which is to be provided in the "Give-a-Basket" baskets will be good and bountiful. The food selected by the AMERICAN has the endorsement of Miss Isabel F. Hyams, for years director of a domestic science school in the South End. She says:

"No one need ask for a better dinner than the AMERICAN is preparing to give on Christmas.

Here is the list of viands each basket will contain:

Two chickens, fresh killed, weighing three pounds apiece.
Half peck of potatoes.
Quart of cranberries.
Pound of nuts.
Half dozen oranges.
Package of tea.
Can of tomato soup.
Package plum pudding.
Package gelatine.
Package biscuits.
Can of Peas.
Two pounds of sugar.

POEHLER ROLLS NEW YORK PIN STAR TONIGHT

THE lull in league bowling during the Thanksgiving holidays will be somewhat relieved by the big interclty match of thirty strings between Paul Poehler, champion of New England, and Glen Riddell, the best bottlepin bowler in New York.

The match will be a combination of bottlepins, candlepins and duckpins and will be rolled in two installments of fifteen strings, five at each style of pin. Seventy-five ball will be contested tonight and the final ball tomorrow night.

This is the first event of this kind ever held in this city and will undoubtedly draw well. It has created no end of interest among the "fans" as it appeals to lovers of every style of pin. Hitherto candlepin matches have held the centre of interest in Boston, as there has been little doing with the big and duck pins.

BOTH men will go into the match on even terms. Riddell undoubtedly outclasses Fowler as a bottlepin artist, but he doesn't begin to compare with the Boston star as a candlepin bowler. They are rated about equal at duckpins.

Poehler carried off the individual duckpin prize at the National Congress in Worcester last Spring. Riddell has done considerable duckpin bowling around Bridgeport, Ct., where the little wood is most popular.

The match will be decided on the best eight in fifteen-string basis.

The bottlepin game, which has been very much on the down grade during the past few years, should profit by the contest.

BOWLING will be practically at a standstill this week. Most of the leagues have an opening in their schedules. This is especially true of the teams that roll on Wednesday and Thursday evening. There will be plenty of rolling the first part of the week, however. The City and Suburban, the two big recreational organizations, will be idle, as will the Mystic Valley Club League.

THE Amateur Boston Pin League will go through with its weekly matches as usual. Three of these will be rolled tonight when the City Club meets the B. A. A., the Colonial the Arlington B. C. and the Cottage Park trickler Dudley.

A big gathering is expected at the Arlington Boat and Colonial match. The former team leads in the league, as it only two points ahead of the Bostonians, who are tied with the Providence rollers for second place. Many predict that the Arlington team will go into first place, provided their treatment that the runner-up has a better pinfall than the leaders and besides will have an advantage in rolling at home.

FOLLOWING out an old custom many bowling alley managers in Greater Boston will open up matches for competition on the three days preceding Thanksgiving. Many of these contests are already in progress.

MARATHON and Webster will lock horns in the feature match in the Suburban K. of C. league at the Shawmut Street alleys tomorrow night. Webster has won every one of its last nine games and will attempt to oust Marathon from the lead.

* * *

DONOVAN, Howe, Crowley, Hurley, Mock and the irrepressible "Will" Doyle are doing well in the City Hall League considering their work in former years. Terry Griffin is of the mark earlier this week for his cartoon of the gonfalon.

* * *

MR. COBURN is anxiously awaiting Harry Howard's reply to his challenge for a twelve-string match issued through this column several days ago.

CHAUNCY and Carruth are the only teams in the City League rolling for a team average of 900 or better.

* * *

OSGOOD is piling up a comfortable lead in the Furniture League and will bear watching from now on. Ever since the start of the season Osgood from the leadership it has been going like the honey after.

* * *

SANTA MARIA has finally reached the fourth after many weeks of steady climbing. The Malden team is now tied with Mt. Bernard here for first place in the K. of C. race.

* * *

FORD and Hume show no inclination to lose each other in the Auto. They are joint occupants of first place.

Cornell Sports Costly.

ITHACA, Nov. 22.—According to the financial statement of the Cornell Athletic Association for the year ending August 31, last year, Cornell spent $93.48 on her athletics last year, while the income was $30,148.

FRATERNITY MUST PROTECT ITS MEMBERS

That the Players' Fraternity would take a hand in the protection of the players who buckled into the Federal League, in case peace is declared, was a foregone conclusion.

President Fultz has come out with a statement to that effect and gives Organized Ball fair warning.

Those players, however, who jumped their contracts will be ignored by the Fraternity and that is to the credit of the organization.

The Fraternity, though, cannot dictate to O. B. what salaries shall be paid those players who deserted their clubs, and owing to the fact that most of the class in the big leagues lost money the past season or claim to have, the chances are that none of the jumping players will receive as big stipends as they formerly were paid.

The clubs of the major leagues cannot be forced by the Fraternity to take back their players, for that would be gross injustice, as some of the players may not have the same ability, and therefore will not be as valuable.

Little objection will be raised by O. B. to reinstating those among the deserters who failed to respect the reserve clause in their contracts only, but the players must take their own chances of securing engagements, and there is little doubt those who are capable will get good jobs.

But that club owners will refuse to be influenced on what salaries they will pay goes without saying, for that is purely a business matter that the Fraternity has no right to interfere with, and it would be ridiculous for the players to demand any such thing.

President Fultz seems to take it for granted that peace will be declared, and it is hoped his tip is right.

Sporting Gossip

To the War Correspondents.

YOU talk about the hardships oft, the treaches,
And your tough times getting news along the front.
Of scenes so sad and gorgul but just listen to the story
Of a guy who trails the college sporting stunt.

I, too, have lived a life of a great privation—
You will note my hair is slowly turning gray.
Oh, I'm hep to trial and labor; yes, I'm old George Trouble's neighbor—
(What do YOU know of hardship, anyway?)

I'VE walked the streets all night in quaint New London,
What time a college boat race held the board
I've slep scrun in a bed, with the middle guys half dead
In Poughkeepsie—and, my heavens, how they snored!

I'VE infested uppers on the old New Haven—
As I state, my hair is slowly turning gray.
And I've panted like a grampus up to West Point's foaniess camaus—
(What do YOU know of hardship, anyway?)

I'VE acquired pneumonia in the Cambridge press stand;
Caught chilblains hard by Princeton's lofty spires,
Oh, my nerves are just a tatter from the college social chatter,
And from fighting for my Western Union wires.

MY cardrums have been ruined by the yelling;
I've been drenched by rain at Yale time and again.
And my death will come much quicker from that Philadelphia liquor
That is sold near Soldiers' Field up there at Penn.

I'VE spent my life in trying to strike a balance
On expense accounts—please note these hairs so gray.
But, in auditorial tre, I am e'er proclaimed a liar—
(What do YOU know of hardship, anyway?)

McVey Member of Johnson League.

SAMUEL MVEY, who is now matched to meet Jack Johnson in Cuba, is no newcommer—no carpetbagger—in this matter of meeting Jack.

He is an old and respected member of the league, and as such is entitled to due consideration. It is true that he has not been meeting Jack as a regular business for over a decade, circumstances and one thing and another having prevented.

Along in 1903 and 1904, when Samuel was only about eighteen or nineteen years of age, he met Jack three times in rapid succession, each time over the twenty-round route. Jack took two unostentatious decisions, and then knocked Samuel kicking in the gloaming of the last round. After that Samuel retired from the firm for a time and took to running around with people like Joe Jeanette and Sam Langford. He used to lose to Sam, and beat him, and fight him draws, and everything, and he also fought many a round with Off Joss.

Old Pal of Joe's.

MVEY beat Jeanette once in twenty rounds, was knocked out by Joe in forty-nine rounds, fought a thirty-round draw and a no-decision affair of ten rounds. However, Joe is not going to feel as offended about McVey resuming relations with Johnson as Sam Langford, because the two Sams knocked around together through so many scrapes that it would take an expert accountant to sum up all the gory details.

Of course what McVey did in his other fights against Johnson is no idea on what he will do in Cuba, because the Oxzard black has undoubtedly improved since then, but it might not be a bad idea for his handlers to give the American fight fans a chance to see that improvement for themselves. That is, if the promoters are bidding for any American patronage for the Cuba affair.

Brickley Official for New Haven Game

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 23.— Charley Brickley has accepted an invitation to referee the annual football game here between the Annex and Wesleyan Glee and Mandolin Clubs on Thanksgiving Day. His appointment is expected to be announced by both clubs tonight.

Among the college players who will be enrolled with the Annex eleven will be Pennock of Harvard, Ostrogren of Holy Cross, Big Jeanes, Ghee and Kelly of Dartmouth and Sullivan of University of North Carolina.

Charley Brickley to Celebrate His 23d Birthday Tomorrow

There will be a double celebration over Brickley way Tuesday evening, when Captain Charley Brickley of Harvard's great football team will desert temporarily his studies and come home to make merry over the Crimson defeat of Yale, and likewise to observe his twenty-third birthday, surrounded by his immediate family.

Charley will spend the afternoon in assisting Coach Cleo O'Donnell to get ready the Everett High School football team for the contest next Saturday against Oak Park High School of Chicago.

Charley will be the undergraduate speaker tonight at the birthday reception tendered Major Henry Lee Higginson, the aged Harvard alumnus, who gave Harvard Soldiers Field.

Brickley will leave Friday for Philadelphia, where he will view the Army-Navy football contest on Saturday.

Yale Coach Anxious to Join British Army

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 23.—Guy Nickalls, coach of the Yale University crews, expects to sail from New York today for England. The famous Oxford oarsman said he would make another effort to enlist in the British army. He offered his services at the outbreak of the war but was rejected on account of being over the age limit.

If Nickalls does not enlist he intends to return to New Haven in February to resume charge of the coaching. In the meantime he will resume his brokerage business in London. He admitted that he was pleased with his success as crew coach.

Navy Coaches Drill Men in Forward Pass

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 23.—Navy coaches today set about preparing the team for the big Army game on next Saturday. They feel that a powerful attack has been built up and that the backfield is particularly strong in number of excellent substitutes. On the other hand it is clear that the line is not as strong as the forwards of Navy teams in recent years. A great deal of time will be devoted to the forward pass play.

To Cut Mileage in Poughkeepsie Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—No more four-mile races will be rowed at Poughkeepsie. The distance will be reduced one quarter. The Cornell idea that four-mile races are too severe for the crews prevailed with the stewards of the regatta, Columbia agreeing with Cornell, and only Pennsylvania opposing.

Slosson After Hoppe.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—George F. Slosson has challenged William F. Hoppe for the 14.2 balkline billiard championship.

All-Stars Leave for Honolulu Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The All-Nationals divided a double-header here. The first game was an All-American victory, 4 to 2. The All-Nationals took the second, 13 to 2. The teams will leave for Honolulu tomorrow.

De Oro, Champion Billiardist, Will Play Local Stars

Ben Laurie has been selected to act as referee in all the matches during this week at the Imperial room, where Alfred De Oro will meet the leading players of New England.

De Oro is champion of the world at three-cushion style of play, having defended his title successfully in the last week against George Moore. By his victory the Cuban gained permanent possession of the Lambert Trophy.

During the week the champion will have as opponents Gilliesie, Ryder, Mason, Manuel, Aumiendaud and Carter. They are about the best three-cushion experts in this section.

HARVARD TAUGHT THE FOOTBALL WORLD BIG LESSON, SAYS CAMP

By WALTER CAMP.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 23.—Harvard on Saturday opened the eyes of the public in more than one way. First, she demonstrated her superiority over Yale.

Then she showed the value of an attack, not necessarily because it gains enough ground to make touchdowns, but because it enables the side to keep possession of the ball far more than half of the playing time, and so prevents the other side from developing its attack.

Thus she made it a defensive weapon as well as an offensive one.

OLD DEFENCE A BACK NUMBER.

Finally, and probably, most important of all in its influences upon the game she demonstrated that the old-fashioned defence of simply lining up the forwards and letting them lower their heads and charge the other side blindly back, must be consigned to scrap heap as a means of stopping an attack that has in it any of the infinitely varied possibilities of the football of the present day.

There will be a lot said about the superiority of the so-called "old-fashioned" football as demonstrated by Harvard as against the "new fangled" open play of Yale. But when one takes into consideration the entire play of Harvard in its conception, it will be found that Harvard offered fully as much of advanced football as has been seen on any field for years.

HARVARD VERY SCIENTIFIC.

Their attack did not provide as much of this as did their defence. The man who was willing to divorce his attention long enough from the exciting amusement of watching a runner run or a tackler seize him, and attended to the playing of the Harvard defence and the attitudes assumed by the men at the time the ball was put in play, saw a great deal more of science and skill than the gridiron offered us in the last three years.

At times right in mid-field at the actual snap of the ball by Yale not one of Harvard's team was in a traditional position of defence as exhibited by most football elevens today.

Furthermore, even when closer to the goal line Harvard drew in her defence the men in her forward line were not down low and with one foot extended back for a brace ready to shoot into their opponents. There were crouched, it is true, and the middle man were close up to the end of the ball, but feet were drawn up and their crouch was the preparation for a spring distinctly upwards. Their shooting out was meeting their opponents and thus leaving those hands ready to act further, at the same time avoiding getting their heads buried under the line where they could not see and meet what was coming.

LINE PLAY EFFECTIVE.

"But," some one will say, "their crouching charge is not a new thing. It is what line men should do."

Yes, but these men did not charge in a straight line. They converged instead, or rather their charge was somewhat diagonal (as subsequently might demand) to the line so that they occupied far more space effectively than a man charging straight through. And they almost forced into a position in that charge where, after the impact of their hands on their opponents, they could not get a look at what was coming.

It was a defence that might be forced a little—it was, however, a defence that occupied an enormous amount of space laterally compared to that of Yale, and admitted of few breaks. It was almost like comparing the space covered by the actual body of five men rather than of the same five men with arms extended.

This may perhaps be best illustrated by the work of a man like Pennock, one of the best guards of the country for the last three seasons. When he took his position out in midfield, we will say, with the ball over toward one of his side lines and in Yale's possession, he would stand or rather partially crouch, but pointed not at a right angle to the scrimmage line but across the middle of his centre. He was, however, rather wide from him.

PENNOCK A STAR.

Now when the Yale centre snapped the ball Pennock would shoot his hands with the full weight of his body behind them into the Yale guard, but not following up that charge. Instead of this, having given his man a hard shove toward his quarter, thus blocking up any hole between the Yale guard and the Yale centre, Pennock himself would be fully ready, hands and body to take anything coming on the outside.

Now, this, too, is based upon the standard theory of line work taught years ago, so far as the crowding your man in an opening and blocking the other spaces yourself. But the position for the diagonal drive and shutting in of the play and the execution of it by Pennock's companion has been a gradual growth of Harvard line work coming to its perfection this year.

Harvard defence assumed the most effective positions to have men protecting the flank without too seriously weakening the centre or tackle opening.

LE GORE GREAT PASSER.

The only really vulnerable point was found by Le Gore's forward passes after a run and turn. It might be said in extenuation that this young man is certainly a wizard at throwing a football.

Now for Harvard's attack. As stated repeatedly in this column for the last three weeks, it has a perfect deception in it as against any low straight charging line. Otherwise it is comparatively simple, but it has, with Mahan, to be runs from short kicking formation, the most solid smothering interference thrown upon an end and tackle that can possibly be made out of six men. Other teams have seen enough of it so that they might well copy it.

Nor has Harvard a monopoly on this, for Virginia does it very well indeed and put it against Yale for repeated long gains. Several other teams have it in the same form, but none of them has quite as good a man to run behind it as the fleet and powerful Mahan. Yet Le Gore behind that same interference would have been hard to stop, as he showed on several occasions when he managed to thread the way a long distance with far less assistance.

Mahan and Bradlee, these were the two king-pins of the Harvard attack and Bradlee was not at his best through lameness. Mahan never was better.

HARVARD TACKLED WELL.

Now a word for the tackling. Yale for two periods was very weak but improved somewhat toward the end of the game. Harvard was, with the exception of letting Le Gore slip through several times, very good. The rubber that was sewed to the inside of their sleeves and their stickier hands made it harder for a runner to slip out of their arms when they once had him in their grasp.

Yale repeatedly found the Harvard runners, Mahan and Bradlee, pulling right away from them after they were seized.

Thus the lessons Harvard, the victors, have written upon the pages of the season of 1914 are:

First, that a blind charging defence must be abandoned for one that has its hands out and a chance to diagnose the play.

Second, that one of the strongest weapons of attack is a run from short kick formation with a fast man to carry the ball.

Third, that it pays to lock to all the small accessories of the game as they play a no considerable part in results.

Fourth, that men who have learned that a crouching position with feet well under them for attack can, with a starting signal, get across the neutral zone and pocket their opponents.

Fifth, that with a line that can do this a back can come as fast as he likes with his opening with absolutely no fear, because as he goes through he runs no risk of hitting anything until he strikes the secondary defence. Every team in the country will do well to profit by these lessons.

Snow and Ice Hold Up Army Practice

WEST POINT, Nov. 23.—A serious situation confronts the Army team as it begins the final preparation today for the game with the Navy. The playing field is a swamp-like surface, well laid slimy during the day which freezes up each night. The surrounding ground on the "Plain" is covered with four to six inches of snow and there is no chance in sight for the cadets to get any outdoor work previous to the Navy contest unless it get warmer within the next day or two. As speed is the thing the coaches are insisting upon now, the outlook is discouraging to say the least.

Injured Indians on Road to Recovery

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—The condition of the men composing the Carlisle Indian varsity and Indian scrub elevens is better today after the Dickinson game than might be expected.

Hill with a wrenched shoulder, Bird with a sprained ankle and Wofford with a bruised knee, will all be in shape for the series of four games which Coach Dietz plays in the next two weeks at Providence, Boston, Birmingham and Atlanta.

WELSH-YELLE READY FOR GO AT 'TRIPLE A'

THE two Freddies, Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, and Yelle, the Taunton boy, who hopes to wear the titular crown some day, today completed training for their twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night.

Very little training did Welsh, He is the most active 133-pound tiltist we have had for some time. Although he has been in this country only a short time, the clever Briton has engaged in four bouts. He met Matty Baldwin in this city, Ad Wolgast at New York, Charley White at Chicago, and Jimmy Duffy at Buffalo. Some of these boys are easy picking, either. All four are regarded among the top notchers of their class.

YELLE expects to emulate Jimmy Duffy and show the champion that he can do a little jabbing. Boxing "fans" who have seen Duffy and Yelle claim the latter is a better jabber than the Buffalo man.

It is with mixing boxers that Welsh shines. No mixer has a chance with the champion. He carries too many "guns" for them, as he demonstrated first against Baldwin here a few weeks ago and then against Wolgast at New York.

CHARLEY WHITE, a skillful ring artist, upset calculations by holding Welsh to a ten-round draw and on top of that came Jimmy Duffy's shade. Yelle is of the White-Duffy type and just as careful. His long left hook is a hard punch for any boxer to get inside of.

The clever men have not fared any better against the Taunton boy, for scientific exponents of the game like Tommy O'Keefe and Young Lustig were like putty in his hands.

Tomorrow night may be the last appearance of Welsh in this city. The clever little Briton is a big favorite here, and many of his followers will be out to get a profitable bet glimpse at him in a local ring.

Eddie Moore, Yelle's manager, dropped in today to give his views on the fight tomorrow night. He said:

"I have been asked many times since Yelle has been matched with Welsh what chance I thought my protege had. I want to say right off the bat that I think he has a golden chance and my reason for this is: What has Welsh got that Yelle need fear? I will admit Welsh is very well indeed and put it against Yale for repeated long gains. Several other teams have it in the same form, but none of them has quite as good a man to run behind it as the fleet and powerful Mahan. Yet Le Gore behind that same interference would have been hard to stop, as he showed on several occasions when he managed to thread the way a long distance with far less assistance.

Hermann Says 'Feds' Lack Cash

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 23. — The Federal League is in a very poor financial condition, according to a statement by Garry Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission. Herrmann's declaration was made following a Cleveland interview with President Gilmore of the "Feds," in which the latter is quoted as saying word to the effect that Organized Baseball had made peace overtures to the outlaws.

Herrmann denied this and then challenged Gilmore to "come right into the open and describe in detail all the terms of peace alleged to have been offered the Federal League by Organized Baseball."

"The Federal League is in a very bad shape financially, and I don't think they will attempt to start again, having sunk all they can afford to make a third league a success," continued Herrmann. "They are willing to be admitted to our ranks, and I think there will be something doing very shortly."

Herrmann further declared that the result of the negotiations whereby Charles Weeghman was offered an opportunity to purchase an interest in the Chicago Cubs from Charles P. Taft showed that the Federal League has not the cash.

Taft, principal owner of the Cubs, offered to sell half interest in the club to Weeghman for $450,000 and for the Federal park in Chicago he was allowed until Tuesday to make good his end of the deal. Weeghman asked for an extension of time until December 1, as the Federal League failed to collect the money. Meanwhile Charles W. Murphy, who is half owner of the Cub park, said to Mr. Taft and advised him not to sell to Weeghman.

Murphy's chance came when Weeghman failed to make good with the $150,000 on the appointed date.

B. C. Stars Back for 'Turkey Day' Contest

One of the best elevens that Boston college has had in years will meet the Catholic University team of Washington at Fenway park on Thanksgiving Day at 2:30 p. m. This game will be the renewal of the old-time rivalry of the local management of staging a big Thanksgiving day battle between Boston and some other Catholic team. Arrangements have been made to accommodate 15,000 people.

Coach Mahoney of the local team will have three stars back in the game for the Holiday battle. The return of Captain "Harry" Kiley, "Dan" O'Connor and Bradley, the fullback whose injuries early in fall allowed him to play one full game this season.

"Dan" Dee, the star quarter of last year's team, is also expected to be in condition for the C. U. game Dec 5, when the other stars will be out two weeks and the speed with which he has come along indicates that he will shine against the Capitol College men.

TIGER SEVEN TO MEET HARVARD AT LOCAL RINK

Lovers of hockey, and especially admirers of the brand of game that the Princeton team puts forth, will be glad to hear that Boston will likely see a great deal of the Tiger seven this Winter.

Harvard and Princeton will meet in a best two out of three series again this season. The first match has fallen to the lot of New York, and will be played in the St. Nicholas rink on Tuesday evening, December 1. One of the following week will see the two sevens interlocked on the St. Botolph surface with the play of the game, if one is necessary, decided in the same rink on Saturday, February 13.

Better still, the Arena management is desirous of entertaining the Princetonians during the Christmas holidays, and are at present conducting negotiations to this effect. If the Tigers agree they will meet McGill College, the Boston A. A. and probably the Tech seven, while here.

The Bengals have but one of their fifteen seven of last Winter in college, Captain George A. Peacock. The great "Bobby" Hare and "Scotty" Kuhn, his side partner, have both been graduated, but will assist C. N. Peacock, the 1910 captain, in coaching the aspirants for the team.

For this reason Baker and Kuhn both passed up an opportunity to work in Boston and become members of the Boston A. A. team, instead they will play with the St. Nicholas team of New York in the newly formed amateur league and get thus practice with their team and likewise touch the Tiger cubs.

Princeton has Straw, Schoen, McAdoo, Hilliard and the two Humphreys, former St. Paul School boys, where the finest hockey players in the intercollegiate ranks are turned out. All were members of the 1917 team last season.

Crack Runners in Big Race for Title

The eighteenth annual ten-mile cross-country run for the championship of the Boston A. A. on Thanksgiving Day, under the auspices of the St. Mary's Catholic Association of Cambridge, promises to surpass all previous years, both in interest and the calibre of entries.

On account of the intense rivalry that exists between Clifton Horse of Haverhill, Jimmy Hennigan of the Dorchester Club and Rathgeb of the Irish American A. A., the finish that these men represent requested St. Mary's Catholic Association to have the course surveyed in order that there may be no doubt as to the distance. The record for the course is 54.25, held by James Hennigan. To date thirty-nine entries have been received, including all the leading cross-country runners in New England.

Mahan May Lead Harvard Next Season

Eddie Mahan, the brilliant halfback of the Harvard eleven, will probably captain the Crimson on the gridiron next season. His great showing in the Yale game on Saturday, practically assured him of the position. Those "on the inside" are of the opinion today that nothing stands in his way.

Other "H" men eligible to be put up as nominees are R. G. H. Parsons, R. C. Curtis, J. L. Bigelow, J. Wallace, H. C. Watson, R. C. Coe, King, G. A. McKinlock, R. R. Lowell and J. A. Gilman.

Mahan captained the "Cubs" in his freshman year. He is president of the junior class and is very popular among his classmates.

Down at Yale Alec Wilson, quarterback, now assumes that lead likely choice of the Elis. It has always been the custom at Yale to alternate each year between a southern and Sheffield man, and as Talbott, this year's leader, is a Sheffield student, the lot next season will undoubtedly fall to Wilson, who is a member of the academic department. Harry Le Gore, the wonderful fullback, will be Wilson's closest rival for the captaincy. Among others likely to try for the position are Knowles, Conroy and White.

Seventeen men won their "H" in the Yale game. They are: J. Weeks, Sidlo, '15; A. J. Weatherhead, '15; H. St. J. Smith, '15; L. C. D. Parsons, '15; R. C. Curtis, '15; J. B. Witherspoon, '15; M. Weston, '15; D. F. Wallace, '15; J. L. Bigelow, '16; H. M. Atkinson, '15, and Coolidge, '16; J. C. Watson, '16; E. O. Sweet, '15; S. C. King, '16; G. A. McKinlock, '16; Hugo Francke, '16, and W. J. Underwood, '15.

Lincolns Win Hard Game With Soldiers

The Lincolns of Brighton added another string to their long list of victories yesterday, when they defeated Fort Strong 7 to 0, in a well-played game. The ground was extremely muddy after the first period and both teams relied principally on straight football to gain ground. Captain Hall of the Lincolns starred on his four-yard line, and aided by remarkable interference ran ninety-six yards for a touchdown. Mullaly kicked the goal. On Thanksgiving afternoon the Lincolns will play the Fitz Field Athletic Club for the championship. Both teams will have a band and 6,000 people are expected to witness the game.

WORLD'S MAT STARS IN BIG MATCHES HERE

Wrestling "fans" are showing the keenest kind of interest in the outcome of the series of matches that will make up the strong card arranged by George Tuohey for decision in Mechanics Building on Thanksgiving night.

Walter Thurston, who is to meet Frank Hackmann in one of the numbers, is a brother of the "Mighty Pole" and has already been seen here in action against Leslie, whom he defeated into submission. Walsh was first prize winner in the tournaments at Paris, Vienna and South America. Hackmann has never appeared in Boston, but he is a young German of more than ordinary class, who won first place at Hendrickson and has been paired with Bygraves for that reason.

Another pair will be George Lurich and Eric Arvidson, the bulky Swede, who tips the beam at close to 250 pounds.

The third number brings together Isando Bey, the Tartar giant, against Harvard. The latter is a Belgian, weighs 360 pounds and will afford a good foil for the tremendous strength of the Tartar.

Why My Husband Left Me

No. 6—An Extravagant Wife Tells How She Wrecked Her Happiness

By DOROTHY DIX

"I LOST my husband," said the sixth woman, "through my extravagance.

"As there are men who are cursed with the mania for drink, so there are women who are cursed by a mania for spending, and the one breaks up just as many homes as the other, and causes as much misery. I am one of the women to whom the allurement of shopping is as irresistible a temptation as the glitter and odors of the saloon are to any drunkard, and indulgence in my weakness brought me to ruin just as surely as indulgence in his weakness ever brought a man to the gutter.

"There never was a finer man than the one I married. He was sober, moral, upright, a man with a big heart and a wide, wise vision of life. He was a self-made man in the very best sense of the word, for he had been a poor boy, and at the time of our marriage had, by sheer pluck and ability, raised himself to a responsible position in the firm in whose service he had begun as an office boy, and the future lay bright and promising before him, with every prospect of success.

"We began our married life in the traditional rose-wreathed cottage in a pretty suburb. Before we were married Jack had explained his circumstances fully to me, and had told me that while we could have all the comforts of life and some of the luxuries, for a few years we would have to be economical, and count our pennies. He also told me just how much he could give me as an allowance to run the house on and for my own expenditures, so that I have not even the poor excuse that many women make for their wastefulness, that my husband kept me in the dark, and I did not know what I could afford to spend.

"I began our married life with a crime. Jack had given me a generous check with which to buy the furniture for our new home. 'Spend it as you please, of course, darling,' he said to me, 'but I want you to have everything as nearly to your taste as possible, but remember that this is every cent that I can give you now, so get the things that we are absolutely bound to have first, and then add the trifliking as you can.'

HER FIRST MISTAKE

"Well, I went down to a big furniture store to buy our furniture, and the first thing I did I stumbled into a sale of quaint and gilded trumpery furniture with spindling gilt legs and pale satin brocades, suitable only for the boudoir of a millionaire, and before I realized what I had done I had spent the most of my money on this foolish bunk. The few dollars that were left I hastily invested in cheap and flimsy bedroom chairs and a rickety dining table, and as this was not enough for even the essentials of housekeeping, I had to go a couple of hundred dollars in debt.

"I shall never forget the expression of disappointment and hopeless bewilderment that came over Jack's face when he saw my purchases, and realized that I had thrown away his good money on stuff that was worse than useless. But it was tearfully repentant, and he was tenderly indulgent with me, and made no reproach for my folly to my lack of experience, and blamed himself for not having realized that a young girl not used to handling money would not know how to spend it wisely.

"But that was only the beginning of my career of extravagance. I fairly lived in the shops, and I could never see a thing without wanting it and buying it, no matter how well I knew that I could not afford it. My husband was a man on a moderate salary, yet I indulged myself in $50 hats, and Paris gowns, and handmade lingerie.

"Worse, the very sight of a bargain seemed to stir me into a sort of frenzy, and when the madness was on me I bought recklessly whatever was being sold without regard to need.

HE TRIES TO EXPOSTULATE.

"Of course, the result was that I ran my husband into debt. I owed everywhere that I could get a dollar's worth of credit. There was not a day that the bill collectors were not at our door. I took the rent money and paid a little here and a little there to keep the creditors quiet until we were served with a dispossess notice for rent that Jack thought was already paid.

"At first Jack reasoned with me lovingly and tenderly about my extravagance. He told me of his ambition to get an interest in the firm in which he worked, and how he had saved and sacrificed for that, and that there would be an opportunity soon to buy a little block of stock in it if he had the money, but that this opportunity would be lost to him if he had to spend every cent on my bills.

"I loved him. I wanted to help him, but I could not control my mania for spending, and see his cherished savings went to pay for my debaucheries of shopping. Then Jack scolded me for my extravagance, and I grew afraid of him and hid them, and lied about them as long as I could, and our life was one succession of scenes.

"Finally the bill collectors began hounding Jack in his office, and then he came to me, his face stern and white, and told me that he was going to leave me until I could live my life with 'your extravagance,' he said, 'you have broken my heart and wrecked our home, but I am not going to let you make a slave of me any longer. I am not going to spend my life toiling for milliners and dressmakers. I am going to make you an allowance that shall be paid to you through a lawyer, and I am going to take steps to stop your credit and prevent you from running me into debt any farther.'

"And that was the end. I have repented in sackcloth and ashes, but you cannot call the dead to life again, and of dead things nothing is so dead as dead love. I have slain my husband's love, and there is no resurrection day for dead love."

On the Roof

Poor little Mrs. Jay's parrot got loose and flew out of the window, Great was her distress. Rushing wildly out into the patch of garden in the front of her house, she saw Polly sitting contentedly on the roof, surveying the surrounding landscape with much interest.

All at once she beheld an aged workman coming down the street, carrying a ladder.

"Please, my good man, will you get up on to the roof and catch my bird for me?" she cried pleadingly.

Quite willing to oblige, the aged one placed his ladder against the wall and slowly made his way up. At last he reached the roof and crept toward Polly. As, however, he got closer that intelligent creature drew herself up.

"What the dickens are you messing about on the roof for?" he scolded at him.

The aged man came to a sudden stop, raised his head, and replied: "Beg pardon, ma'am! Thought you was a bird!" and climbed down again.

PROVISIONS FOR THE ARMY IN THE FIELD.

Importance of Keeping Body Well Nourished.

In time of war, the greatest effort is always made toward cutting off the enemy's base of supplies. It is the well-nourished people who fight the strongest and live the longest and contribute most to human progress. Is your stomach doing its duty—does it convert food into good blood and tissue?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of indigestion that thousands of former sufferers owe their good health of today to its wonderful power, and testimonials prove it.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the digestive juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. Well, pure, rich blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

It is the world's proved blood purifier. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. Start to take it today and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, and in a few days you will know by your steadier nerves, firmer flesh, clearer mind, brighter eyes and clearer skin, that the bad blood is passing out, and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arteries.

The same good blood will cause pimples, acne, eczema and all skin eruptions to dry up and disappear. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the safest remedy for such serious ills. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drug. It contains the blood and nerve tonic and alterative principles of Stillingia, Oregon Grape-root, Queen's root, Black Cherry and Jamaica Dogwood, extracted from the roots by scientific processes without the use of alcohol, and concentrated into a sweet glycerine extract. Sold by druggists in liquid or tablet form.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Marriage on Twenty Dollars a Week

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"CAN a man afford to marry on a salary of $20 a week? I am twenty-one years of age, have a good position, with a splendid outlook for the future. The girl I admire does not appear to be extravagant—still I do not wish to take the step unless I secure the advice of some one who is a position to figure out if I dare marry on my present salary. HENRY."

Henry, I appreciate your faith in asking me if you can live on $20 a week and include in your schedule the maintenance of a wife and home. But you have come to the wrong person for advice this time. The only one who can give you a really satisfactory answer is the girl you want to marry.

Whether you can marry and be happy on twenty dollars a week depends largely upon her.

On general principles, I will assure you that a man who is earning good present salary, and who has the promise of a bright future, has ever, in my opinion, a right to share life with him. His position justifies him in taking the responsibility of wife—but it also requires that he inform her of the leves of his financial condition, that she may be blinded by the glamour of love that she will promise anything, she will in all probability stop and compare two things—her meager but ability and her ability to "go without."

If twenty dollars a week is to cover all the expenses of life—food and lodging and clothing and pleasures and transportation and medicines, and all the hundred daily needs that eat into the money funds it must be judiciously expended. Rash and extravagant buying, and rash and straining economy alike are injudicious and won't get the most for your money.

When a woman loves a man in the full sense of the word, she is generally happy to make sacrifices for him. Washing and baking and cooking and scrubbing are not drudgery when they are done for some one a true woman loves.

Climbing the ladder of success together brings a closeness of interest through its very "togetherness." Going without, so that your beloved may have most of the things he wants, has in it an element of happy martyrdom and is likely to appeal to the great "maternal instinct" that all women have.

So even an extravagant and worldly woman may be willing to marry a man in moderate circumstances and happily take her place at his side as partner and helper and sweetheart and wife—an ideal companionship, truly!

And then there are the prospects of a "brilliant future." What woman would not glory in a chance to have some part in making her husband's dream of success come true and in feeling as it did come true that he had done better with her than he or than he could otherwise have managed to do?

But there is decidedly another side to the shield. If you ask a girl to marry you and to share with you a small salary you must be prepared to be patient with her little blunders in management and execution. You must not complain if she does not always look as fresh and sweet as she did before she cheerfully began "going without" on your account. You must not swerve in your loyalty and give your admiring attention to the wives and daughters of men who can give them the means to accentuate their charms.

You must not selfishly go in search of pleasures while your wife is at some stretching, both ends to the meeting point. You must cheerfully keep up your end of the burden and not feel that when you "provide" to the best of your ability you have done your share.

By all means marry on $20 a week—and prospects and ambition and determination—if you bring to requisite them love and patience and unselfishness and common sense and understanding and mutual forbearance. But if you have this assistance and aides, your marriage will not go astray no matter what the contents of your pay envelope!

Truthful James

Jim had been brought up in the country and the paths of righteousness. Even as a child he had been a truthful little fellow, and this rare virtue did not desert him when he came to man's estate—which is queer, as things go.

It so happened—this was, of course, in England—that he was on one occasion haled before the bench charged with poaching. It was a mistake on the part of the police, and James was indignant. Quivering with anger, he denied that he had ever, on this or any other occasion, shot a bird out of season or belonging to someone else.

"Oh, I say, now!" protested the magistrate. "Do you mean to tell me you have never in your whole life poached a bird?"

"Yes, I do, sir!" answered James with conviction. "Never in my life have I shot a bird that I hadn't a right to—never except once, and that was a rabbit, what I clumped over the head with a stick!"

Obsolete

"You say you used to have a profession, my good man?"

"Oh, yes, lady; I used to manufacture petticoats."

"YOU don't deny it!" he said, in a low, intense tone. "I don't want you to lie. Look at this certificate." He spread it out before her.

She did not look at it. She heard the sound of paper rustling and guessed its nature.

"You are unjust—it is infamous to speak like this," she cried, without glancing toward him. "You insult me—the mother of your child—without first asking an explanation. It is true that when I was a young girl I loved that man. I thought him fine and noble. Then he went away—he was reported killed—and—them at the War Office if you doubt me."

Her voice faltered.

"Did you thought you were a widow? Why did you not tell me?"

"Partly because I was a snob—I was ashamed of being a servant's wife—yes you may well smile—chief) because I had been told that the marriage was void."

"Void!" He started.

"Yes, void, for it I am not Captain Steele's wife. She drew toward the fireplace. "I have the affidavits here in yours."

The servant opened the door. "Sir Ralph Gerrard and Captain Steele," he announced.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Leslie instantly turned her back to the door. The servant withdrew. Sir Ralph, who wore evening dress, halted near the threshold and looked as to some uncertainty at his cousin, who stood erect regarding the newcomers. Victor, evidently fresh from the country, still wore his tweed morning suit. He made a quick movement of surprise at seeing Leslie and advanced half way across the room toward her.

"Good evening," he began, but she did not stir.

He stopped short and looked at Varney, who was regarding him fixedly.

"Had I better go?" asked Sir Ralph in a stage whisper.

"No, you are concerned in this, stay!" Varney commanded him.

Leslie glanced round at him. "This scene has all been arranged, I presume," she said bitterly. "It seems to have been admirably stage-managed."

At the sound of her voice the man standing by the door started. He glanced keenly at her from beneath his heavy lids. She shrugged her shoulders.

"If you don't wish to insult me, I should be glad if you will turn this man out of the room."

With her finger, but without looking at him, she indicated Victor.

He bowed and moved toward the door. Varney at once stepped before him to bar his way. The two men looked into each other's eyes. For a moment it looked as if they would rush at each other. Varney held up his hand with a loud trouble to stay here a little while in spite of that lady's wishes," he said. "You both owe me a little explanation."

"At your service," replied Steele, "but while I am here I want you to behave with ordinary courtesy. I am no more patient than you." He turned fiercely on Sir Ralph. "Why did you not have the decency to tell me that you were dragging me into a scene of this kind? You shall pay for your treachery, your lying excuses, for enticing me here. Now," he turned again to Varney, "what do you want to know?"

"I have here," said Oswald, quivering with rage, "the certificate of your marriage with this lady." He made a slight movement of his hand toward Leslie—"at the register office, Hounslow. I presume, to begin with, that there is no mistake about your identity?"

"Oh, that is the man!" broke in Leslie, a world of contempt in her tone, still keeping her back turned to the room.

"Do I understand you to be offering me your services, Mr. Varney?" asked Steele, coolly.

"Excuses be—" Varney clenched his fists. Victor looked at him quickly and expectantly, as if to say, "Come now, I am ready for him." The older man turned away with an impatient gesture. His next words were addressed to Leslie.

"Perhaps you will now be good enough in the presence of this man to explain what you just said to me—that your marriage with him is void."

The angry woman turned with a sharp cry and faced the three men like some wild thing at bay. Her eyes sparkled, her cheeks flamed, her arms pointed stiffly downward.

"Captain Steele knows that our marriage was void," she cried in ringing tones. "He knew it when he went through that false ceremony at Hounslow. He was mean enough—sad enough—to take advantage of my helpless position—to marry me when he already had a wife. The crime of which you dared to accuse me"—she looked directly at Oswald—"is his. His wife was and is now alive—and he knows it. Then! Ask him if you doubt me."

All eyes were turned on the Egyptian officer. He stood rigid, grasping the back of a chair, his eyes raised toward the ceiling as he listened to Leslie's words. He drew a deep breath and a faint smile played around his mouth.

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Is that so?" asked Varney, half hopefully, half incredulously.

Victor nodded deliberately.

"I have no reply to make to Mr. Varney's statement," he said, softly.

Oswald stared at him in astonishment. "Do you realize of what you are accused?" he said, pointing the other in the face. "Do you realize that if what this lady says is true you have tried a mean and cowardly trick on a woman? Victor bowed his head. His motionless face betrayed nothing more to say," he said.

And then Sir Ralph stepped forward. "Where is your wife, Captain Steele—the lady you married first? I suppose you can produce her?"

"Sir Ralph Gerrard," said Victor quietly, "I am sorry that circumstances have already made me lay my mind to knock you down, and if you address another word to me in that offensive manner I shall give you a thrashing."

The two men faced each other pale and red-breasted a step. Varney moved quickly. "Wait! I ask you three questions. You say you married this lady first? Is that so?" he asked Victor.

"I refer you to your wife. She discovered this without my assistance. I leave it to her to reveal the name of her informant, if she thinks fit. She alleges I have married—"

"I have married no one whom the men's eyes were turned expectantly. For a moment no one spoke. Then Varney, with a sneering laugh, exclaimed: "This information from the woman herself. She did not even know that she was this man's wife, in what relation I had stood to him. I suppose you will ask me to believe that she was ignorant of the fact that you were married?"

"I have no reply to make," said Victor roughly. "I would get to the bottom of this business. The validity of my marriage depends absolutely on this alleged first marriage of Steele's. I have never seen the woman he has lived with, nor where and when it was solemnized."

"I can answer that quickly," I really can't speak. As Mrs. Varney knows, I am the last person to be known as Steele's wife."

"Have you the certificate on you?" Varney asked curtly. "Most Frenchmen who carry their birth and marriage certificates in their breast pocket."

Varney was half convinced by his own words that Victor was a liar. It was by the man most concerned to deny it. He looked up questioningly at his wife. "Is this true, Leslie? Is he who was asking Sir Ralph's advice—"

The baronet addressed himself to the woman. "My dear Leslie," he began in a fatherly manner, "I am your husband's only relative, and, in a sense, the head of his house. Your son's name you are bound to establish. The fact of your marriage to Oswald himself will doubt. I advise you most earnestly to consider your position carefully and to act with and to put aside all other considerations. Unless you produce this woman, our names must be at rest, she may be deceiving you."

Hair of the Ages

The Lady in the Time of the Pharaohs and the Lady of Today Much the Same

Hairdressing in the Reign of Rameses II., 1340 B. C., and in 1914 A. D.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

THE fact that woman has never been given to her just credit in history not only in the picture of a woman's head from a statue recently unearthed in Egypt and representing an Egyptian princess who lived 3,000 years ago, but also by pictures that have been found painted on the walls of caverns inhabited by prehistoric man, type of illustration of the fact. In some of these very ancient pictures the artist has made the figures the size of the women's heads, shown in minute detail, probably because that was the most mystery of hair-dressing had made astonishing advances centuries before the Christian era, and when our part civilization had appeared.

A writer on ancient fashions remarks that the wise reader will remembrance should exist between the hair dressing employed by the ancient and modern women, but this proposition is not true. In fact, the hairdressing of the ancients was far more elaborate and complex than that in use today. But, in

BROOKLINE MAY OFFER REWARD FOR BANDITS

It is certainly of more than local moment. I do not think that the responsibility of apprehending these culprits should rest entirely with the town of Brookline.

"This is a matter which concerns the entire State. With such desperate characters at large, the life of no one is safe. There is no knowing but that such desperate men, made bold by the success of their Friday night venture, will attempt a similar hold-up in another section of the state. The citizens of the Longwood district are living in a state of terror since this thing took place. Everybody is wrought up to a most abnormal pitch, and anxiety and apprehension are in every heart.

"We think that the reward for the capture of these men should be commensurate with the crime of which they are guilty. A thousand dollars is little enough for a reward. The amount offered for the arrest of these villains should be sufficiently large to show the public how badly they are wanted by the police. The greater the reward the quicker somebody will come forward with a clew which will lead to their capture.

"Then, too, the general run of thugs and yegg men should be made to feel just what efforts would be made in the attempt to capture them should they be considering a repetition of this deed.

"There is a wholesome lesson to be taught each malefactor by the way in which this case is dealt with. And there is no time like the present to strike terror into the hearts of such cowards. That is why I believe that the larger the reward the better. Brookline would gladly offer a larger reward if the statute permitted a town to do so.

"The police are doing all in their power to run down these men without the additional incentive of a reward. And, while I do not believe that the offer of a large reward would stimulate the activity of the officials, yet I do think that there may be individuals who may be waiting for just such an offer to disclose whereabouts of these men.

"The $15 which they secured at the time of the robbery will not last long, and, unless arrested quickly, these same fellows may try just such another game somewhere else before long.

"It is little short of inconceivable that such a crime could be committed in such a thickly settled section and the offenders escape scot free. They must act, and act quickly, if we are to hope to avoid a repetition of such an event.

CITIZENS MAY HELP.

"I shall do all in my power to enlist the co-operation of the Commonwealth in offering such a reward as seems appropriate to the offense, and I welcome the co-operation of public-spirited citizens everywhere to that end.

"Additional rewards from individuals are thoroughly in order. The greater the reward, the sooner we may expect to see results."

Threats "on suspicion" were made by the Boston police today.

Patrolman John Fox made the first two arrests. He noticed two young men on Tremont Row who seemed to have no particular business. They were walking up and down, peering into windows, and apparently waiting for something to turn up.

Patrolman Fox took them to the station and they were questioned. One says the name of William Kaplisen, twenty-two, and the other says he was William J. Carney, "cowboy." "We have no home," they told the police.

They said they were in the army stationed at Fort Strong, but deserted soldier at to the use of heroin, and that for using they were dated to Fort Jay and then to Fort Leavenworth. Upon being freed they said the prison authorities paid their fare back to Boston.

STORIES DOUBTED.

The police doubted details of this story, and sent for Sergeant Rutherford, who has charge of the Brookline case, to come and look the men over. He brought with him Detectives Slason and Reginald Pickett, who were in the Brookline store as clerks at the time of the holdup and who saw the men who shot Merrill.

Slason and Pickett looked the men over, and were positive they were not the yeggs who came to the Brookline store.

Another arrest early today was that of Alexander Pagley. Pagley was arrested by Patrolman Peter Sullivan, after Sullivan had shadowed him for an hour. Pagley was found to have in his pockets all the money from the butt end of a billiard cue, and confessed, the police say, to how he had planned to hold up some prosperous looking gentleman, but that his nerve had failed him.

Slason and Pickett saw Pagley, and positively stated that he had nothing to do with the Brookline tragedy. Then John L. Kelly of the Fort Hill Ward Committee was sent for, and when he came he said:

"That's the man who stuck me up in the store Friday night. He's the man that had the gun."

Pagley accordingly was charged with assault with a loaded revolver with intent to kill and with robbery.

Sergeant Rutherford declared in his hope that one of the three suspects might prove to be connected with the case, and is making a close search of the West End, where he is canvassing for some trace of the yeggs. He has already visited the South End lodging houses where the yeggs might be taken refuge.

VAGUE DESCRIPTIONS.

The descriptions the police have of the two men are somewhat vague. They are described as "dirty looking," but not foreign looking. One is dark swarthy, the other light. Both were young. One was about five feet seven inches tall, the other was shorter.

Today is the sixteenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill. They had planned a "second honeymoon" together for the day of celebration; for they were especially devoted to each other. Instead, Mr. Merrill's body will probably be taken to Worcester for burial. The services will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Lakin at No. 15 Stoneman street, Worcester. Mr. Lakin is a stepfather of Mr. Merrill. Mrs. Merrill, the widow, in a state of collapse from the tragic shock, went

Big Demand in Embroidery Offer Shown

Thousands of the AMERICAN'S women and girl readers are going to be interested in the offer today in securing the Embroidery Pattern Outfit now being distributed by the AMERICAN.

The only way is to SURE to get YOURS is by starting to clip the coupons TODAY—right now.

Each outfit consists of over 200 transfer patterns, one 8-inch embroidery hoop, ten skeins of embroidery silk, and full instructions together with a pamphlet of instructions showing how to do embroidery stitches. All you have to do to secure this outfit is to clip six coupons of consecutive dates from the Magazine Page of the Daily AMERICAN and bring or send them, with sixty cents, to the AMERICAN'S Pattern Dept., No. 5 Winthrop square. If you are not positive as to the store where you live who sells the Boston Evening AMERICAN, inquire at any newspaper on Sunday morning.

FIVE CENTS EXTRA BY MAIL.

Did you get one of the FREE Embroidery Patterns the AMERICAN is giving away to its girl and women readers?

If not, better call on your newsdealer without delay and tell him you want one.

Each new pattern he will give you is a bed-iron transfer doily design, including, indeed, within a few days of the more than 200 different designs now included in the AMERICAN'S Embroidery Pattern Outfit.

to Worcester with Mr. and Mrs. Lakin Saturday.

Another member of the Brookline Selectmen this evening will be consulted with interest. Selectman Cusick, one of the Selectmen said:

"I heartily approve of the suggestion that the town should offer a suitable reward for the arrest of the murderers of Merrill.

"It was a cold-blooded affair, and should be handled in the most energetic fashion.

"The statute limits the reward the town may offer to $500, but private persons of the town may do well that offer as much as they please.

"I shall be glad to use my influence to secure the offer of a reward in the matter."

La Grippe and Colds

In 24 Grippe and Colds Anti-Kamnia TA-KE Tablets are unexcelled. Relieve headache, backache, soothe the nerves and bring the rest so greatly needed by Grippe. To restore the system to health. Physicians have used Anti-Kamnia TA-KE Tablets for over 20 years in the treatment of Grippe and Colds and they always have found no other remedy more quickly and surely effective. Anti-Kamnia Tablets are so inexpensive, so pleasant to take, so certain in their results, and so useful in all conditions where pain or fever is present, that Tablets should always be kept in the house for the time of need. Many of our most prominent citizens obtain perfect results in a single night's use of Anti-Kamnia TA-KE Tablets. Ask your druggist about this system with Epsom salts or the like. Anti-Kamnia TA-KE Tablets bring the patient on a limited diet, and administering one A-K Tablet every two or three hours. This treatment will usually break up the worst case in a day or two, while in milder cases, ease and comfort follow almost immediately. These tablets are also unexcelled for Neuralgia, Rheumatic Pains, The basis of Anti-Kamnia TA-KE Tablets is Acetanilid, but other ingredients modify the effect of the Acetanilid and prevent any bad after effects. Get a 25c box today. Sold by druggists everywhere.

How the Democracy May Make the Future "Clear and Bright"

This country is unaffectedly glad to learn from President Wilson that the business "future is clear and bright with the promise of better things," and that "the future will be very different from the past, which we will look back upon * * * as if upon a bad dream."

Moreover, the President is quite right. The future IS clear and bright. As long as the war continues to create a great foreign demand for our exports and we sagaciously take advantage of the opportunities the war affords, times will continue to improve.

Some features of that past which we are soon to look upon as a bad dream may be referred to, though the President failed to go into such detail.

What was happening to our export trade when the European powder magazine was touched off is worth remembering.

For the year preceding the war, the United States had been surpassed in foreign exports by Germany. Up to the time of the Democratic tariff, England had held the first place in export trade, the United States the second place, and Germany the third. BUT, AFTER THE WILSON TARIFF LAW, the United States sank to THIRD PLACE in exports, AND GERMANY TOOK SECOND PLACE. The war of course changed this.

After the Wilson tariff law, and the reduction of the protective duties, foreign goods poured into the American markets, so that we not only lost a good part of our trade but also a large part of our home markets.

After the Wilson tariff law, the balance of trade set strongly against this country, and at the opening of the war the balance of trade against us amounted to something like $200,000,000. Our factories were closing, our banks and business enterprises were cramped for money, and the government, like many individuals, found expenses greater than income.

Then came the war in Europe. Every foreign nation wanted gold. Our debt for the goods imported in such a flood under the Wilson tariff was payable in gold or goods. Our exports, being shut off during the early days of hostilities, could not begin to discharge any considerable portion of this debt. In a few weeks more than $100,000,000 in gold was shipped, and our financial situation was unmistakably dangerous.

But soon war conditions so shaped themselves as to be advantageous to the United States. The nations engaged in war were not only largely unable to supply the foreign demand for their products, but were, furthermore, unable to supply many necessities in sufficient quantities for their home consumption.

This state of affairs benefited the United States in two ways. It operated as the United States protective tariff had done to keep the foreign products out of this country and to give the home markets largely to our own manufacturers. In addition, it operated to transfer to the United States a demand for goods in various countries which had formerly been supplied by the nations now engaged in this war.

Therefore, the United States not only had its home markets to supply once again, but it now had the foreign markets to supply, which the embattled nations had formerly possessed but were now incapable of supplying.

The demand for the products of the United States at this time, is, therefore, enormous, the prices high, and the profits to individuals and the benefit to the country should be correspondingly great.

Therefore, there is every likelihood of the United States entering upon a period of good times, if the people of this country and the government of this country can take full and lasting advantage of the opportunities which the war has created for them. TO TAKE FULL AND LASTING ADVANTAGE OF THESE OPPORTUNITIES TWO THINGS, HOWEVER, ARE NECESSARY:

First—An intelligently constructed tariff for protection, TO PRESERVE OUR HOME MARKETS FOR OUR HOME MANUFACTURERS.

Second—A policy of RECIPROCITY TREATIES AND A MERCHANT MARINE. The reciprocity treaties will open foreign markets to our manufacturers, and our own merchant marine will enable our goods to be transported to foreign markets under the most favorable conditions.

These policies are not very difficult for the Democratic administration to plan and to provide. The policies of reciprocity and preferential duties are firmly established Democratic policies, and have been ever since the time of Jefferson.

The policy of protection is not a Democratic policy, BUT IT SHOULD BE, and it is possible to devise a protective system which will be essentially Democratic and which will be so honestly and so intelligently constructed that it will benefit the producing classes of America without benefiting unduly and unjustly the privilege-seeking classes.

The main objection to the policy of protection adopted by the Republican party has been the favoritism with which its benefits were conferred, the dishonesty and partiality with which its operations were conducted.

A protective tariff so constructed as to benefit the laborer and the farmer and the honest manufacturer, to preserve our home markets for our home products, to encourage home manufacture on such a scale that we could go into foreign markets with the advantage of a standardized product and a wholesale rate; A PROTECTIVE TARIFF WHICH CONFERRED NO PRIVILEGES UPON POLITICAL FAVORITES, BUT OPERATED FOR THE GREATEST GOOD OF THE GREATEST NUMBER, would be a measure wholly Democratic in character and wholly different from the Republican policy.

To justify President Wilson's prediction of the return of good times the conditions which are creating the great demand for American products should be made as permanent as possible. The Democratic party has two years in which to accomplish this task.

A law requiring preferential duties—that is to say, an abatement of duties on goods imported in American ships—has already

American Children and Slang

More Attention Ought to Be Paid by Schools to Teaching Correct Forms of Speech—American Parents Less Careful Than English Ones

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

PASSING a group of grammar school graduates soon to enter high school, the following phrases were overheard:

"There ain't no ball here." "Yes, there is; I seen it." "I never done no such thing." "Git out o' here."

These expressions and others may be heard in any schoolyard every day in the year. More than three-fourths of the boys and girls attending high school converse in language which is the expression of ignorance and lack of culture.

What is the matter with our school system that so little value seems to be placed on the important matter of conversation?

The assistant dean of Harvard, William Castle, Jr., complains that the language of the average Harvard student is very poor.

Certainly the same may be said of Yale men, and of Princeton men, and of students of all American colleges and schools.

The Rochester Herald, commenting on this, claims that good language is a matter of feeling, and says:

"Slovenly writing is the result of slovenly thinking. No boy will ever write an essay on the tariff question in good English unless he is interested in the tariff question. No Harvard man will ever write an essay on Hegel that will be well written unless Hegel has inspired him either with love or with hate. If English boys write better than American boys, as it is asserted, that they do, the reason will be found in the fact that English boys are more thoughtful than American boys, for there is far less teaching of English in English schools than in American schools."

English Children Receive More Intimate Education

But English children receive more intimate education in their homes than our children receive. At one of the English hotels a father was heard day after day at the meal hour drawing his little daughter out to talk of her school, her studies and her recreations, and his gentle corrections were listened to by the child with respectful interest.

In one English home (typical of thousands of others) the mother arranged all her domestic and social duties with the central idea of being at the table when her children came from school, and the conversation and topics all served the purpose of educational uplifts.

One does not encounter many American mothers or fathers of this type. Slang and ungrammatical language pass from the lips of American children unrebuked by parents who know better. Not only unrebuked, but the slang frequently evokes a laugh, which is encouragement for its repetition.

Even in the shops and streets of England one hears much better language used, with much more agreeably modulated voices, than one hears in our own country. It is an older land, and the value of good language and the appreciation of it as one of the virtues have been backed by many more centuries than America has known. But it seems that we might awaken in our schools and in our homes to the very large and important part which good language plays in the world.

Children Should Realize the Value of Good Language

We ought to insist upon having teachers who will devote a few moments each day to the discussion of this subject with the children, so that it may impress their minds, and that the mere grammar lesson will not be regarded as the whole of grammatical education. A card ought to be printed and placed in every school and every home where there are school children, giving a correct version of a few of the sentences so continually misused in daily conversation.

Attention to this card should be called whenever double negatives are employed or other mistakes made. And by every possible means our children should be made to realize the value of good language as an accomplishment.

You may choose your word like a connoisseur
And polish it up with art;
But the word that aways and stirs and stays
Is the word that comes from the heart.

You may work on your word a thousand weeks,
But it will not glow like one
That, all unsought, leaps forth white hot
When the fountains of feeling run.

You may hammer away on the anvil of thought,
And fashion your word with care;
But unless you are stirred to the depths that word
Shall die on the empty air.

For the word that comes from the brain alone
Alone to the brain will speed;
But the word that aways, and stirs, and stays—
Oh, that is the word men heed.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The Commonwealth owns 8,500,000 square feet of land available for industrial and warehouse sites with finest water connections and railroad alongside of some 4,000 cars capacity?

been passed by Congress, but has been set aside by President Wilson.

That law at once should be put into operation, and other laws passed to develop speedily an American merchant marine.

Reciprocity treaties should be promptly negotiated; a Democratic policy of impartial protection should be inaugurated; our commerce should be encouraged in every legitimate governmental manner; and then, with a great navy to protect our country and our commerce, the United States will be ready to take its place at the head of all the nations of the world in progress and prosperity.

What's the Answer?

The rush of the English to subscribe for a new loan of $1,750,000,000 was so great in London last Wednesday that temporary offices had to be built in the court of the Bank of England to accommodate the subscribers.

In Berlin a few weeks earlier a similar loan was oversubscribed by a public eager to invest nearly twice over.

In both London and Berlin money is plentiful, and interest rates are lower than in America.

But on every hand Americans are importuned to subscribe money for the relief of the British and Germans—and they are responding liberally.

Meanwhile the appeals of those who ask aid for our own people in distress are as the voice of one crying in the wilderness. What's the answer?
